

PRESIDENT OF HAITI ASSASSINATED

MAN SHOT JULY FIFTH DIED AT HOSPITAL TODAY

Czelaw Marzec Claimed He Was Assaulted on South Common and Robbed

After lying in a critical condition at St. John's hospital with a bullet in his jaw for over three weeks, Czelaw Marzec, the Williams street grocer, passed away at an early hour this morning. He was 42 years of age and is survived by a wife and six children.

In an effort to ascertain the cause of the man's death which has proven a mystery too deep for the local police to solve, Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs will perform an autopsy on the body which now lies at the rooms of Undertaker Archambault.

Early on the morning of July 5, Marzec staggered to his home at 55 Williams street and reported to his wife and friends that he had been shot and robbed of $20 within a few yards of the South common. On the night of July 5, the common was thronged with people, witnessing the display of fireworks and at that time it seemed strange that none in the vicinity was attracted by the shooting.

Continuing his story, Marzec said after regaining strength he walked to the banks of the Concord river where he lay in an unconscious condition until early in the morning. He then managed to get home and ask for assistance. The ambulance was called and the man was taken to St. John's hospital. A pocketbook in which he is said to have carried money at all times was found empty in his inside coat pocket.

The police were immediately called into the case and since that date Sergt. Petrie, Inspector Walsh and Lieut. Maher have spent time on the case. Residents of the vicinity of South and Summer streets were interviewed to learn if a shot had been heard or a man had been seen knocked down but no information was secured. Marzec was visited at the hospital but he stuck to his story that he had been robbed and that the robbery occurred within 25 feet of the South common.

Today Sergt. Welch of the police department stated that from what has been learned he is positive that the shooting was not the work of robbers and was not committed near the South common. The police claim there was another motive for the shooting but say that the man would give out no important information even while on the dangerous list at the hospital.

The bullet entered Marzec's jaw and lodged in back of the nose. On account of his weak condition it was impossible to extract the bullet.

THE BECKER CASE

Decision by Justice Ford
Today—May Grant a
New Trial

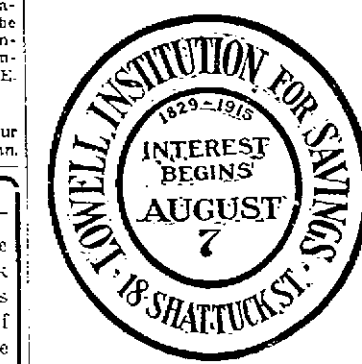

NEW YORK, July 28.—Decision was expected to be announced by Justice Ford today whether to grant a third trial to Charles Becker or whether to call before him the condemned man and new witnesses to give evidence in support of Becker's application for a new trial. One of the main points that he had to consider was whether he had authority to grant a new trial for any other reason than those set forth in the statutes. He had to decide whether he possessed the inherent right to re-open any case decided in the supreme court has now been set for Friday morning, but it was understood today that if Justice Ford decided to allow Becker to testify in support of his application for a new trial it would be necessary to obtain another reprieve for the condemned man.

Becker, in the death house at Sing Sing was said to be preparing a new statement to be made public only after his death. It was said that this was not a confession of guilt or graft but a reassertion of his innocence.

Justice Ford received a number of letters today regarding the Becker case. All but one urged a new trial. The justice also received several telegrams urging mercy for Becker.

GOV. WHITMAN NOT AT CAPITOL

ALBANY, N. Y., July 28.—Gov. Whitman was not at the capitol today and Secretary Orr explained that he was "resting at the executive mansion." The current belief is, however, that he has retired to consider the Becker case and to receive communications regarding it. If Justice Ford asks for a further reprieve for Becker in which to consider arguments for a new trial, such a request, it is generally believed, will be readily granted by the governor.

BODY TIED TO ROPE AND DRAGGED THROUGH STREET

Today's Act of Violence Followed
Burial of Political Prisoners Who Were Massacred in Prison Yesterday
—U. S. Warship Rushes to Scene

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 28.—A mob of Haitians today removed Vilbrun Guillaume, president of Haiti, from the French legation where he took refuge yesterday, and shot him to death in front of the building.

Victims of Massacre Buried

This act of violence followed immediately the burial of the political prisoners who were massacred in prison yesterday, at the time of the revolutionary outbreak against President Guillaume.

The mob was composed in large part of relatives of the victims of this wholesale execution. The crowd invaded the French legation and seized Guillaume. At Girard, the French minister to Haiti, protested vigorously but he was powerless before the fury of the people.

Dragged into Street

Guillaume was dragged from the protection of the legation. Once in the street the crowd surged around him with imprecations and shot him to death.

Even then the anger of the people was not appeased. The body of the president was mutilated, and tied to the end of a rope, it was dragged through the streets of the city.

The people of Port Au Prince are in a state of intense excitement and further violence is feared.

U. S. Warship to Scene

The arrival of the American cruiser Washington, with Rear Admiral Caperton on board, is expected at any moment. The Washington has been on the north coast of Haiti. M. Girard was counting on the coming of a cruiser to afford protection to the legation.

GEN. OSCAR KILLED

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 28.—The night, following a day of tragedy, passed quietly in all sections of Port Au Prince. The population of the capital, however, is highly indignant at the massacre yesterday of 150 political prisoners, including ex-President Orestes Zamor, executed by order of Gen. Oscar, the governor-general of Port Au Prince.

The attempt made yesterday to seize President Guillaume failed because of the energetic protestations of the French minister.

It is generally feared that the calm among the inhabitants of the capital is the result of consternation over the reign of terror that has prevailed for several days and that it will be succeeded by a great outbreak of fury when reaction sets in.

The body of Gen. Oscar today remained unburied before the consulate of the Dominican republic, where it had fallen after he had faced a firing squad. The governor had taken refuge at the Santo Dominican consulate after his unsuccessful defense of the presidential palace, but a mob stormed the building and dragging him through the street shot him to death.

AWAIT DETAILS AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Full reports from Rear Admiral Caperton on the latest Haitian revolutionary outbreak at Port Au Prince were awaited today by officials of the United States government. The information was called for following the receipt of official advices reporting an uprising in the Haitian capital against President Guillaume.

Official advices received here from Port Au Prince reported an outbreak, but gave few details.

150 Men Executed

Unofficial information said that former President Zamor and 150 political prisoners had been executed by order of Gen. Oscar, governor of Port Au Prince, who later was slain himself by a mob after taking refuge in the Dominican legation, that President Guillaume and family had taken refuge in the French legation, which had been threatened with attack; that the presidential palace had partially been destroyed and that the revolutionists were in possession of the city. The reports made no mention of foreigners having been harmed.

GERMANS LOST 500,000 MEN ON RUSSIAN FRONT

Czar's Line Not Yet Broken—German Attacks Along Narew Checked—Russians Holding Along Bug—Germans Sink More Ships

LONDON, July 28, 12:27 p. m.—Though the Germans now hold a great line from the Gulf of Riga sweeping around Warsaw, thence encircling the city and stretching away to the Galician frontier near Sokal it is estimated they have lost 500,000 men, perhaps more, in this the most ambitious movement of the war and the Russian front is not yet broken.

On the Narew river, north of the Polish capital, the Russians have made a stubborn resistance, holding Field Marshal von Hindenburg for the time being in check, while to the south the combined Austro-German forces struggling to seize the Lublin-Chelm railway have been for days on the threshold of success without being able actually to achieve their goal.

Fighting on this latter front has been renewed with great intensity and the Teutons claim they have improved their position on the extreme right which is resting on the Bug river.

Immediately west of Warsaw comparative quiet prevails, and it is along the Lublin-Chelm sector or in the Narew river region that it is believed a crisis will be reached.

Which one of these fronts is of the greater strategic importance London critics cannot agree, but the material point is admitted by all that a German victory on either front would mean the fall of Warsaw.

30 Persons Under Arrest—Inquiry Into Eastland Disaster—Victims Buried

CHICAGO, July 28.—With 30 persons under arrest or detained as witnesses, inquiry into the steamer Eastland disaster proceeded today in an effort to fix responsibility for the disaster, which cost the lives of more than 1000 persons.

Indictments charging manslaughter, criminal carelessness or conspiracy will be returned by the state grand jury tonight if evidence warrants according to state's Attorney MacKay

Hayne. It is expected that the coroner's inquest, which may be concluded tonight, will result in the holding of several persons.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield directing the federal investigation, examined records of the local steamboat inspection service preparatory to examining witnesses tomorrow.

While the investigations were in progress 600 victims of the tragedy were being buried in a dizzling rain.

It was "black Wednesday" in Cleveo, where a majority of the victims resided. Thirty funerals were held from one small church.

The day was designated by Mayor Thompson, who returned from San Francisco, as memorial day for the dead and the city closed all public buildings and suspended business in many sections.

Work of raising the Eastland was begun but it will be at least ten days before the steamer is placed on its keel again and the search for the missing resumed.

At noon the latest figures on the dead and missing were:

Identified dead, 828.

Unidentified dead, 534.

Western Electric Co.'s revised list of missing, 511.

Total, 1362.

PICKPOCKETS SENT TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

Men Arrested Here Have Long
Records—Davis and Ryan Had Aliases to Burn

Harry N. Davis and Charles Ryan, with several aliases, who have police records in various parts of the United States and who were arrested in this city by Traffic Officer Edward Connors a week ago yesterday charged with larceny from the person in that they extracted a wallet containing $3.01 from the pocket of Bartholomew Kestner of Silver Lake, Wilmington, were found guilty by Judge Enright in the local court this forenoon and each sentenced to six months in the house of correction at East Cambridge.

Supt. Welch conducted the case for the prosecution while William A. Hogan appeared for the defendants. Both appeared and were held in the sum of $500 each for their appearance in superior court on the first Monday in August.

Mr. Kestner, the complainant, was the first witness for the government and he proved a very amusing and interesting one. He said he came to this city last Tuesday for his weekly visit and after doing some errands boarded a Reading bound car. In the back pocket of his trousers he carried a pocketbook which was in its place before getting into the car, he said. After finding a seat near the rear door, Officer Connors stepped up to him and asked him if he had lost his pocketbook. Upon feeling into his pocket he found the pocketbook missing and then went to the station with the two defendants and the officer in the pocketbook, he said, was a two

The sheriff also said he would release Frank Tannenbaum, the Industrial Workers of the World leader, arrested last week.

The strike at the Eagle Oil company's plant at Caven Point, Jersey City, which 200 men were affected, ended today when all but sixty employees returned to work. The Eagle Co. is a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co., and the employees were told they would receive the same terms that will be offered the men at the Bayonne plant of the Standard Oil Co.

Sheriff Kinkead, whose stern measures during the last four days of the strike are believed to have been chiefly responsible for the ending of the trouble, was in Bayonne again today. He found that there were 29 guards housed at the Tidewater plant and he took them to police headquarters. He said he would send them to Jersey City for arraignment with the 31 guards arrested Sunday. In pursuance of the plan to find out who did the sniping from this plant last week.

DIVERS SEEK HUNDREDS OF BODIES HELD FAST IN BOTTOM OF EASTLAND

DIVER TAKING BODIES FROM EASTLAND
PHOTO, © 1915 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

It is believed that several hundred bodies are still imprisoned in the hull of the Eastland, which cannot be reached until the vessel is raised, which task will take probably several days. It is also believed that under the hull are still more bodies buried in the mud. Coroner Hoffman is of the opinion that within and without the hull there are between 500 and 700 bodies. If his opinion proves correct the death toll will exceed 1500. Because of the turbid condition of the water in the vessel—it is black and filled with debris, such as luncheon baskets, chairs, furniture and other articles—the work of recovering bodies is exceedingly slow. Some of the divers said there were at least 200 bodies in the forward part of the ship, access to which was barred by heavy steel gratings and other impediments, impossible of removal below water. In the accompanying illustration is shown a diver just after he came from below bearing the body of a girl.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

That most of our Massachusetts cities and towns are alive to the fact that tuberculosis is a serious disease and are doing effective work toward reducing its ravages is an encouraging thing to contemplate.

The results attained which are seen in the frequent discharge of patients with a clean bill of health show the effectiveness of the modern methods of treatment of this disease.

Fall River tuberculosis hospital affords accommodations for 65 patients, and, of course, has a large waiting list. These latter are under the observation and treatment of the city's physicians; but there is no question that Fall River will erect additional pavilions for the treatment of all its cases. New Bedford has a T. B. hospital conducted by private philanthropy where about 75 patients are being treated.

The city of Cambridge maintains a hospital where about 70 persons with tuberculosis are being cared for; and is planning, I understand, to enlarge it so that some hundreds may receive treatment. It cites these three cities, two of which are peculiarly in Lowell's class, to show what they are doing for their people afflicted with tuberculosis, and by contrast to show what our city isn't doing.

Here in Lowell we have a population largely engaged in pursuits and living under conditions which promote the contraction and spread of tuberculosis. It would perhaps be difficult to name the number of our people, more or less, having the germ of this disease; but it is safe to say that in various stages it would reach into the hundreds. We know that at least 80 per cent of all these cases exist among individuals and families who haven't the means of affording themselves proper attention. They cannot receive adequate medical treatment, nursing, nourishment or intelligent direction. It is needless to say they cannot go into the country or otherwise segregate themselves and live on pure air, fresh eggs and milk. We know that most of these people live in close, thickly settled localities and the above conditions prevailing there become a constant menace to the whole community. Under the present state of affairs they haven't, in not a few cases, a chance for their life. If they live, they live; if they die, they die; and no thanks to a municipality whose first care should have been to help afford them that chance and right for life and the pursuit of happiness. Surely, we know all this and more. We know that the law of the state declares that persons with contagious diseases shall not become pauperized because of treatment by public health boards, and hence it is that our local board in T. B. cases brought to their attention, provide treatment, nursing, medicine and, oftentimes, provisions for needy patients. But as yet there is no provision made for the removal of a patient to a place of consistent care and of right environments. Hence, the plea for some such place.

Recently a tuberculosis clinic was established in city hall, and for two hours a week receives whatever cases that may appear for treatment. This has been done to comply with the state law; and whatever benefits it may result in is at best but a makeshift as we consider the greater and more important work the city of Lowell should be engaged in at this hour.

Who does not recall, in the years that have gone, some family wiped out by the ravages of the consumption? Nor is it improbable that in these days of advanced knowledge of the disease—which we call tuberculosis now—you are not witnessing some family dying one after the other. Only recently I was talking with a man, himself infirm and needy, who told me that he had lost his two sons and a daughter, all dying of consumption. His oldest son died at the age of 22, the younger at 31. His daughter died when she was 19. He has one child left—a girl of 17; and the old man said he had noticed of late that she seemed changed, and he feared she would go in the same way. Does any one believe that this old man's sons and daughters, under our enlightened laws, had a chance for their lives? And does anybody in the city of Lowell think that the city, its law, and whatever benefits it may result in is at best but a makeshift as we consider the greater and more important work the city of Lowell should be engaged in at this hour.

The French Maid Says:

Gift Jewelry

"A girl friend has a birthday next week and I want to give her something in jewelry, but not too expensive," said Marjorie. "Can you give me some ideas, Marie?"

"Enamel lockets, in delicate shades and with chains to match are pretty," began Marie, "and would give a nice touch of color to a lingerie dress or blouse. In particular keeping with the color effects are the old fashioned ivory lockets set with tiny pearls and suspended from heavy ivory chains. Indeed the woman who is the fortunate possessor of a fine piece of old jewelry would do well to have it remodeled and reset as the vogue for these lovely old things is apt to be long lived."

"Garnets are much in evidence, both in necklaces and brooches. Combined with imitation pearls, many of the pink garnets make most beautiful necklaces and defy detection. Breast pins and bracelets of carved ivory have also been revived. The pins, large and round and finely carved, cost from twenty to forty dollars."

"Hat pins make modest and nice gifts. The simple small gold pins, round or pear shaped, take the lead in favor. When set with stones at all they are usually selected with a view to carrying out the color scheme of the hat. Crystal jewelry, usually in the round rock crystal and variously engraved, is having a decided vogue, especially in watch pendants and brooches."

"The new bracelets are broader than formerly, perhaps half an inch at the widest point, from which they taper gradually towards the end. The flexible styles have the preference, and many novel designs in these are shown. More unusual are the bracelets of diamonds in which a moire effect is obtained by the use of a wavy line of sapphires."

A VERY PECULIAR CASE

MR. AND MRS. RICE RETURN
FROM WORK IN MILL TO FIND
THEIR HOME WRECKED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rice on the third floor of a block at 45 East Merrimack street was entered sometime yesterday and everything smashable in the tenement smashed on the floor and other articles soiled and turned topsy-turvy. The case is one of the most peculiar that has been called to the attention of the police for years.

When Mr. and Mrs. Rice, who are employed in local mills returned from their work at six o'clock last evening they were bewildered by finding the household dishes broken into a thousand pieces and spread all over the floor. Pictures were torn from their places, tables and chairs turned up-side down and the chambers were thoroughly ransacked. When the couple left in the morning everything was in proper condition. It is believed that the person or persons who performed the contemptible act gained an entrance to the tenement by opening the back door with a key.

An investigation by the police showed that women apparently drunk, had been seen in the hall during the day. Noises were also heard in the tenement about noon, but neighbors thought Mr. and Mrs. Rice were having dinner at home. A box of snuff was the only clue left though. It is said, the occupants of the tenement gave the police some information that resulted in arrests.

Every Day Etiquette

"Will you kindly tell me what one should do when attending a reception and in the receiving line are some women one does not know?" asked Hortense.

"The hostess will present each guest to the persons assisting her in receiving," advised her sister.

"How many cards should a bachelor leave when calling on a married woman who has a young woman visiting her?" was Jack's query.

"Three cards; one for the host, one for the hostess and one for the guest," said his father.

"What is the proper thing to write on visiting cards when one wishes to use them for luncheon invitations?" asked Mrs. Newlwyed.

"On the lower left hand corner of the card write: 'Luncheon at half past one o'clock, July 28th,' was her mother-in-law's advice.

"Please tell me what initials are used on linens and silverware, before one is married," demanded George.

"The monogram of the bride-to-be are used on all articles marked before the wedding day," replied her aunt.

"When one wishes to give a piece of silver to a girl about to be married, what monogram should be engraved upon it?" enquired George.

"The monogram of the girl's maiden name should be engraved on the silver," replied his father.

"At an afternoon tea should I remove my gloves before or after the tea is handed to me?" asked Winnie.

"It is not customary for afternoon callers to remove their gloves when taking tea," said her aunt.

Corn on the Cob —the Roasting Ear

Is not more delicious than the

New Post Toasties

In the growth of corn there is a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious (roasting ears). As it slowly ripens this hardens and finally becomes almost flinty.

This nutritious part of the corn is cooked, seasoned, rolled thin, and toasted by a new process which enhances the true corn flavour.

Different from ordinary-corn flakes, the New Post Toasties have a distinctive form and flavour; and they keep their appetizing crispness, even after cream or milk is added.

These Superior Corn Flakes come oven-fresh in tight wax-sealed packages; and they cost no more than ordinary "corn flakes." Insist upon having

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

The German press need not assume that the American contention for freedom of the seas applies to Germany alone. It refers to Great Britain, France or any other belligerent or non-belligerent who would violate it. President Wilson's statement on this point was quite clear and comprehensive, so much so that the London papers say it concerns England as well as Germany, and why not?

Here is the statement from the American note on this point:

"The government of the United States will continue to contend for that freedom (freedom of the seas) from whatever quarter violated, without compromise and at any cost. It invites the practical cooperation of the imperial German government at this time when cooperation may accomplish most and this great common object be most strikingly and effectively achieved.

That phrase "from whatever quarter violated" has caused the British press to stop cackling over it, and to say "that means us." It certainly refers to England against which charges are piling up; but of a very different nature from those against Germany. England has held up a great number of cargoes for investigation and the owners where they violated no law will claim heavy damages. There will be a very long reckoning on such matters, but England is not accused of causing the loss of American lives.

Eight American vessels have been attacked since the war began. Three of them were sunk by mines, one was sunk by a German cruiser, one was attacked by a German aeroplane, two were torpedoed and sunk and one was torpedoed but not sunk. In addition two British steamers carrying Americans were torpedoed and sunk.

In all 121 American citizens lost their lives from German attacks on the sea. The list is as follows:—

January 28—William P. Frye, American, sunk by cruiser	No dead
February 20—Evelyn, American, mine explosion	One dead
February 22—Carib, American, mine explosion	Two dead
March 28—Palaba, British, torpedoed	One dead
April 3—Greenbrier, American, mine explosion	No dead
April 30—Gulfport, American, torpedoed; not sunk	Three dead
May 1—Cushing, American, torpedoed by aeroplane	No dead
May 7—Lusitania, British, torpedoed	114 Americans dead
May 25—Nebraskan, American, torpedoed	No dead
July 25—Leelanaw, American, torpedoed	No dead

Total 121 dead

That list is certainly long enough to justify the protest made by President Wilson against the German mode of submarine warfare. Yet the president in his attitude makes no discrimination as between the belligerents. Any other position would be inconsistent with our neutrality and would descend to the status of mere partisanship. The substance of the note may be misconstrued and distorted but it will stand and go down in history as one of the most important steps towards maintaining the freedom of the seas taken by any nation in modern times—provided the United States backs up its declaration by action, and this the president says will be done at any cost.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION

Over a month ago Engineer Denman said that unless work on the Pawtucket bridge were started right away it could not be built this year. Now, he says, if the work be started without delay the bridge can be completed by December 1. Usually there is a good deal of frosty weather before December 1 in this latitude. When candidates in charge of city departments try to keep street or sewer work in which cement is used, going up till election day, early in November, there is generally frost enough to spoil the cement work. Occasionally also there is high water in the river before December 1, and it would not be creditable to Mr. Denman nor profitable to the city if the bridge should be swept away before completion.

It is not stated whether Mr. Denman would give a bond to hold the city secure against any such possibility. He is to be the supervising engineer; but as a matter of fact he gives no bond and the city has to take his word that the bridge will stand up and be all right when completed. If it should collapse under its own weight when built by Mr. Denman, the city would have no redress. If the bridge were built by a contractor he would have to give a bond as a guarantee of good work. Then if the bridge fell before the first frost, the contractor would have to pay. Mr. Denman, we understand, is to build the bridge, if at all, on his reputation. His reputation may be first class but no reputation would prop up a tottering bridge nor stay the force of a freshet such as occasionally dashes torrent-like over Pawtucket falls.

It is necessary to perfect the plans before starting the work. It is desirable to secure the $5000 offered by the street railway company on the approval of the plans by the J. R. Worcester company's bridge experts. That approval has not yet been secured and may not be for several weeks. For that reason there is very little prospect of building the bridge this year. The work should be done between May and the end of September in order that it might have time to dry and harden before the first sets in. Consequently the whole undertaking will go over to next year's government and the present officials can claim only the credit of getting the bridge movement well started which will probably be sufficient to carry the vote of Pawtucketville at the city election, although it may stir up opposition from other parts of the city on account of the bungling and unbusiness like manner in which the municipal council went about the matter. The bridge cannot be built this year and there is no hurry to justify taking any chances of having the job spoiled by cold weather. The old bridge is showing no signs of weakening despite the terrible things said about it, and in its defense we venture to suggest that Commissioner Morse could drive the road roller over it and escape without a scratch.

CANADA IN THE WAR

Canada is entering into the spirit of the war as if her freedom and her future destiny depended upon the triumph of the allies. The troops that left Canada gave a splendid account of themselves at the front and when they found themselves face to face with superior numbers and under terrific fire of the great German guns they did not run; but fought and fought until every man of them was annihilated. They suffered severely, but they taught the enemy that the Canadians are brave fighters and that they never run. Canada mourns the loss of several regiments who bore the brunt of the attack in some of the fiercest battles on the western front; but she is satisfied to know that in their heroic efforts they brought honor to the Dominion and the empire for which they gave their lives.

Canada is training more regiments and preparing for a long struggle. She is now looking over her national finances and estimating her liabilities in the prolongation of the European struggle. She finds the $150,000,000 war loan will not be sufficient to meet the demands beyond March, 1916, and that another loan will be necessary. As it is doubtful that the present revenue from war taxes will be sufficient to meet the interest on necessary and increasing war loans, it is likely that additional taxes will be imposed. The war has proven a serious drain upon the finances of Canada but she is just beginning to realize her great national wealth and the possibilities of her future growth and development.

Out of the depth of depression and in face of a great war she is rising to greater strength and ability to meet all obligations, and this she is doing with a will and a determination that speaks well for her future. Her liabilities are small when compared with her great and promising possibilities. Canada is fast assuming the characteristics of nationhood that require no fostering care from any source and the part she is taking in this war is revealing a strength the possession of which she had not previously realized.

GENERAL JOFFRE

The French people are deeply devoted to "Papa" Joffre, the great general in command of the French forces in the present war. Joffre won his laurels in many campaigns and is not only a soldier but a scholar, a lecturer and a refined gentleman. The French many years ago learned to place their confidence in General Joffre and the common saying among them is that if Joffre is in charge of a campaign, there is no need to worry, it will come out successful.

General Joffre's record justifies that opinion. No general perhaps in the entire war is so confident to sacrifice his men in battle. The French troops are fighting successfully over a long front, but Gen. Joffre never asks them to rush on the cannon's mouth or to expose themselves unnecessarily in front of an overwhelming foe or in a disadvantageous position. But when he plans a battle and arranges his forces, the men under Joffre will die willingly in the struggle. The French artillery fire is dreaded by the Germans as are the terrific bayonet charges which are carried out with a sweep of irresistible force. Joffre is the idol of his troops and if speedy victory does not come to France, it will not be the fault of the commanding general.

CASE OF THE LEEANAW

The sinking of the Leelanaw, an American ship, by a German submarine is not a deliberately hostile act as laid down in the last American note to Germany. The vessel was carrying flax which is contraband of war, between two ports of the anti-German belligerents but that cannot be urged in justification of her destruction. In striking contrast with the course pursued in some other cases, was the treatment of the crew which was taken on the submarine and then sent out in small boats. Officials at Washington are rather dismayed at this act of Germany so soon after the delivery of the note. Under specific treaty stipulations all that the Germans could legally demand was that the vessel submit to search, deliver up the contraband and then be allowed to escape. Instead of pursuing this course the Germans sank the vessel. Therein lies the basis of a claim for compensation to be brought against Germany. Doubtless the case will be subject to further diplomatic exchanges.

DANBURY HATTERS' CASE

The Anti-Boycott society of New York has taken steps to sell the homes of 140 defendants in the Danbury Hatters' case in collection of the judgment of $252,130.80. It seems that the Hatters' union has not stood by these defendants as firmly as it should. The sum of $35,000 has been paid and $30,000 is tied up in litigation over the interest. This is certainly a long drawn out case and one which shows by decisions from the highest courts in the land that boycotting the business of any concern, firm or corporation is a very serious matter.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce is at Chicago and he will find it difficult to clear his department of responsibility for the Eastland horror. It was a case of inspectors approving a dangerous vessel and the captain allowing on board about 500 over the maximum number considered safe. The people were simply slaughtered through the criminal negligence of officials.

WOOD ALCOHOL

Somewhat wood alcohol is mistaken for the ordinary alcohol and taken in water by some people who want to manufacture their own whiskey. Wood alcohol should be called by some other name and always labelled. It was undoubtedly responsible for the two deaths from what Dr. Meigs has designated "acute poison."

THE DRIVE ON RUSSIA

The attempt of Germany to envelop the entire Russian army is undoubtedly what the Kaiser referred to when he said he would soon make a move that would make all Europe tremble. The movement is the greatest ever attempted in the history of warfare, but its success is yet problematical.

We are not in accord with Commissioner Morse when he says that Prof. Swain had to recommend some changes in the plans of the bridge in order to justify his charge of $500 for examination. Prof. Swain is above any such motive and on that report he bases his reputation which is surely worth more than $500 even in Mr. Morse's estimation. But Mr. Morse has acknowledged that he is not an engineer.

SEEN AND HEARD

A word to the wise may be sufficient but most people need a lot of talking to.

To a good many people the phrase, "the necessities of life" means the things they want.

What do the men who wear beards do with all the time they save by not being compelled to shave?

A man ought not to have any fever unless he is rich enough to be able to give all his attention to it.

every morning without difficulty just the same.

When the ancient Hebrew prophet wrote: "The chariot shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against the other in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like lightning," he predicted the automobile all but the horn-banking.

A DOMESTIC PROBLEM

A woman says that the best cook she ever had left her good job to get married. The cook's new husband didn't turn out to be such a hero as he was expected to be, and the cook came back to confide her troubles to her former mistress.

"He's a pretty good husband, madam," she said, "but he licks me so often I can't hardly stand it no more." "Why don't you have him arrested?" "I've been thinking of that. But I got a lame back and can't wash no more and how would I ever get the money to pay his fine if he was pinched?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BABY SONG

Rock-a-bye, baby, upon de tree top,
Daddy is makin' a big cotton crop.
Daddy is plowin' de furrow for you,
Makin' de hog an' de hominy, too,
Rock-a-bye, baby, upon de tree top,
Soon daddy lay by de big cotton crop.

Rock-a-bye, baby, how sweet de wind sings,
Sings 'bout de heaps en heaps o' good things.
'Spee' dey is tell how de cotton bloom smile.

De holls come a-bustin' long here after while,
When good daddy lay by de last ob de crop.

Rock-a-bye, baby, upon de tree top.

Rock-a-bye, baby, de fiel is all brown,
De wagon is rumblin' way off to de town.
De crop is done gathered, de plowin' is done.

Daddy done finished his work in de sun.

Down in de wood where de solemn wigs were,
Poor tired daddy is lying asleep.

Rock-a-bye, baby, dest smile on en dream;
'Tend like de world ain't black as it seem.

Smile when de wind rushes by wid a roar,
Dream how it's daddy out dar at de door.

Rock-a-bye, baby, for poor mammy's sake,
Mammy must sing, else will her heart break.

AT LAKE SUNAPEE

Local anglers who are in the habit of visiting Lake Sunapee will be interested to know that Henry I. Bowles of Springfield has agreed to buy 125,000 brook trout fingerlings at a cost of $1000, and place them in that sheet of water. Of late years very few brook trout have been taken out of Sunapee. Fifteen or more years ago good catches were made there. The record fish of this variety ever caught in Sunapee weighed 73 pounds and was pulled out by a Manchester fisherman and sent to President McKinley, who was expected to visit the lake that summer as a guest of Secretary Hay. Nature has removed all cause for litigation over the state of the water in Sunapee, the heavy rains filling the lake. The total rise since the rain started has been 25 inches, an increase that, according to the record of the dam company, has only been equaled on one occasion within a period of 40 years.

THE CAREFUL BUYER

She hadn't shopped much in the eastern city, and she had been warned that she would have to keep a weather eye cut or she would have shoddy goods put off on her. She was a careful shopper, and didn't intend to let the big city stores get the best of her. She had tried the patience of the woman who was making the rounds with her, by twisting the silk to see whether it had cotton in it, and chewing threads of the wool goods to see whether it was all wool, but it seemed to her city cousin that the limit had been reached when they went to the 10-cent store to buy a sugar bowl and cream pitcher. The careful buyer hemmed and hawed for a long time over two sets, and when she had finally decided, and had paid for the goods, she took a last look at the other set, saying regretfully: "I liked them lots the best, but they didn't look to me like they had as much china in them as this set had."—New York Times.

SO MUCH SIMPLER

A fluffy-haired damsel was trying hard to talk to a professor, but she could hardly follow his remarks, so abstract were they. "Do you know, madam," he said at length, "that some of our greatest discoveries have been made by accident?" The girl brightened up. She could understand that.

"Oh, yes," she gushed. "And, just fancy, I made such an important discovery myself the other day!" "Did you?" asked the brainy man, interested. "May I ask what it was?" "I found that if you keep a bottle of ink handy, a fountain pen can be used as easily as any other kind of pen—without all the dirt and bother of filling it."

LEARNING TO DRIVE

NOVEL METHOD OF INSTRUCTION EMPLOYED BY LARGE AUTOMOBILE DEALER—BIG SUCCESS

The "anchored" automobile has solved the big problem for the beginner who doubts his ability to master the art of driving. From the inception of the automobile to the present day the progress of mastering control of the motor car has been slow and in many cases has even kept persons who really wanted automobiles from becoming owners of cars. The new plan for teaching the beginner, however, has eliminated every difficulty, and the pupil can learn to manipulate a car without being exposed to the dangers of the road.

Like other inventions, the anchored car was the result of necessity. The idea originated in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the salesrooms of a large auto firm. The sales manager found it necessary to discover some easy method to teach driving when the sale of a motor car depended on it.

The president of a large Brooklyn corporation recently told the official that his wife desired a car, but that she felt that she could never learn to drive. That remark started the automobile salesman thinking and the result was the anchored car.

The method used to obtain the result is so simple that it is amazing that it has not been thought of before. By using two small wooden horses the rear wheels of the car are raised from the floor just high enough to prevent the car from moving when the wheels revolve. Sitting in the machine it is possible to go through all the motions of driving minus the fear of road dangers.

To aid the beginner the car is placed before a large plate glass window, where the driver can watch the reaction of the wheels as they go around and see just what happens when the various levers and pedals are operated.

The first person to receive a lesson was the wife of the big business man whose remark inspired the idea. It was explained to the beginner that the art of driving is simply mechanical and that certain things must be done to get the desired results. In fact practice simply made driving automatic.

The first thing required of the pupil was to become familiar with the "key-board" of the car, which included the starting and ignition apparatus. Then there was the brake and clutch pedals, the gear-shifting lever and the accelerator pedal to get acquainted with, and pressed or pushed as the occasion required.

After starting the motor the beginner went through the gears and saw the wheels revolve at different speeds. Then the accelerator pedal could be depressed and the speedometer would register from 20, 30 and 40 to 60 miles an hour. Besides being instructive it was the greatest of fun and absolutely safe.

After four lessons in the anchored car, the pupil was allowed to take a car out on the road for a "real" drive. It then was found that six months' advancement had been made in driving, through the lessons taken in the stationary car. The nervous strain of driving a moving car for the first time was completely overcome. The operator was letter-perfect in the control of the car before going out on the road. So successful was this demonstration that the anchored car has become a regular fixture.

Lowell Motor Mart
Announcements from the Ford Motor Co. always interest the motor enthusiasts and owners. As will be seen from the advertisements of the Lowell Motor Mart on this page today, there will be an interesting announcement regarding the Ford cars next week.

Mr. Roquette in talking with the writer gave no details regarding just what the substance of this announcement will be. However, it is quite sure to be something decidedly in favor of the buyer following the long established custom of the Ford company and very many Ford cars are now owned and operated by Lowell people and many other people will become owners in the near future. It is hinted that there will be a marked increase in the sales of the Fords following the announcement next week.

Sawyer Carriage Co.

Increased business is constantly noticeable at the Sawyer Carriage company in Worthen street. This company makes a specialty of automobile repair work and its efficiency in this line has been proven. The firm operates one of Lowell's largest plants and has attained a position of prominence.

Auburn Motor Sales Company

The bringing out of the new 1916 Auburn motor car has greatly increased the sales of this highly favored type. The Auburn Motor Sales company of Lowell has benefited accordingly. Messrs. Johnson and Morrison have been kept quite busy supplying the demand for demonstrations and answering inquiries. The office of the company is located in the Bradley building.

AUTOMOBILE QUESTION BOX

EDITED BY GEORGE H. ROBERTSON

NOTE—In these columns every Wednesday Mr. George H. Robertson, America's foremost automobile authority, will give expert advice to motorists on how to repair and operate their machines. Automobile readers of THE SUN are invited to send in questions or problems they may wish to have answered. Such questions will receive attention in due time. Address all communications: Automobile Editor, Sun, Lowell, Mass. Communications must bear the signature and address of the sender, though not for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

We have had a discussion on the advantages and disadvantages of the two cycle motor. Will you kindly state the disadvantages of this type of motor?

Ans.—Two cycle motors are not as efficient as the four cycle forms because it is practically impossible to expel the burnt gases and fill the cylinder with fresh gas at the same time without serious mixing. The dilution of the fresh gas by the burnt products reduces its power and it will not explode as readily as fresh gas will. Also, a certain amount of the fresh charge invariably flows out of the open exhaust port before this is closed by the piston moving down. The two cycle engine will not throttle down as well as a four cycle, nor will it attain as high speeds. Two cycle engines are sensitive as to the mixture variations. They are not as flexible as the four cycle, and do not respond as readily to the throttle.

Will you tell me what is the most important part of a motor car to be repaired? Your advice will be appreciated.

Ans.—The power plant is the most important part of the automobile chassis, and in order to obtain continuous efficient operation without overheating or diminution of power it is necessary to keep all the interior working parts covered with film of oil.

In climbing a grade, what should a person observe in regard to shifting his gears? It is puzzling sometimes to know just when to change.

Ans.—If the engine begins to labor when in high gear and opening the throttle more does not produce an acceleration of car speed it is an indication that the resistance is becoming too great for the amount of power available and it is necessary to shift to a lower ratio.

I have a 1912 Ford on which I use electric lights for my head lights direct from my magneto. Recently I find that my car does not run as well with the lights lit as they formerly did. I think my magneto is getting weak.

Is there any way that I can reenergize the magneto without taking it out of the car? Is this trouble due to a weak magneto which has lost some of its magnetism?

Ans.—The use of electric lights run from the magneto of this model Ford tends to decrease the ignition efficiency. Would advise you to have the magneto looked over at the Ford branch.

Please let me know if when the connections leading from the accelerator to the carburetor are loose, more gasoline is consumed than when connecting ports are tight.

Ans.—Loose carburetor connections do not tend to increase the consumption of gasoline. These loose connections tend to make an uncertain operation of the carburetor control, and in order to have the perfect feel of the motor, all these connections must be tight.

Can you tell why tires are usually the same size on a car?

Ans.—It is common practice to make the front and rear wheels the same size on most cars, because there is very little difference possible between the front and rear shoes with the average weight distribution. If two sizes are used, one must carry two spare casings and two different sizes of inner tubes to make satisfactory repairs. If the casings are the same size the front tires may be used to replace the weaker shoes, and these members in turn transferred to the front wheels after a car has been in operation for a time. Rear tires invariably wear faster than front ones, so that after they have worn to a point where they are considered weak for the rear wheels they may have ample strength for the lighter duties at the front end of the car and the front tires, which are in better condition, may be placed on the rear wheels.

What is the best process for removing pistons from a gasoline engine that have been rusted in the cylinder?

Ans.—Liberal soakings of the cylinder and piston with kerosene will eventually cause the piston to free itself. After a good kerosene soak hammer the wrist pin of the piston gently, using a lead bar and a lead or rawhide hammer. A gentle tapping of the cylinder walls from the outside with a soft hammer while the other operation is being performed will sometimes help in loosening a rusted piston.

How many miles can I get out of a new touring car before it could be called old? Say, for instance, I used it evenings and Sundays, how long do you think it would last?

Ans.—A Ford car, used as you suggest, should last from four or five years. This means, of course, that a thorough going over of the car should

LOWELL GOT ONLY TWO HITS OFF
THE ENLARGED LAWRENCE
THROWER

The coits certainly were all cut by Scissors Shears at Lawrence yesterday for only two hits were made off his elusive delivery, one by Snubner and the other by Howcock. In the ninth Manager Ketchum sent everybody on the bench to bat except himself in an effort to pull out of the hole at the final moment but there was nothing doing for Shears had a keen edge and kept it until the finish.

On the other hand, while of course, no team can expect to win a game with only two hits, there were little things that happened which may be brought out in a post-mortem to show where Lawrence got three runs that he shouldn't have acquired. Twice Matty Zieser passed Harry Thompson, and on each occasion the pass was followed by a hit. Zieser hit Snubner, and on the second pass he hit him again, while twice a single finally landed him at home. Twice in the game balls went out to Harrows that it would seem he should have gotten under but didn't, and one of them brought in the third run. Still it was a good game to look at and was pulled out inside of an hour and a half.

The number of Lowell fans present at the game appeared to outnumber those from Lawrence. Harry Aubrey, who like the pitcher, had a keen edge on the game with satisfaction to players and fans.

After Lowell had been retired in the first Thompson walk, Zieser then threw to try to catch him off the bag but Ettes let the ball get away and Thompson went to second. He then took a big lead off second and went to third on Luster's hit to the pitcher. Luster being thrown out at first. Ettes followed with a grounder that came to Fahey on the first bounce but he fumbled the ball allowing Thompson to score and reach first. Thompson then took a single to center which put Reid on second. Mahoney was then called out on strikes and Ostergren died out to Stimpson.

Lawrence added another run in the fifth inning. After Shears had fanned, Thompson drove a line shot and Zieser, head for a single and went to second on Conley's out at first. Hobbs hit the ball hard but it struck Zieser's shin and he recovered in time to throw the runner out. Flaherty then brought Ostergren home with a long single that bounced off the center field fence. Stimpson followed with a single to Zieser and was thrown out by Shears. Lohman batted for Swayne and made out at Conley. Green batted for Fahey and flied out to Thompson.

PACING CLASSIC

Single G., Has the Foot of Big Grand Circuit
Field

DETROIT, July 25.—Single G., the best of the class pacers on the half-mile tracks last year, showed that he is just as big a bug in Grand Circuit affairs when he led the field home three times in the Chamber of Commerce stake yesterday afternoon.

While this contest did not seem with some of the event did for more than $50,000 was not on it, many people going above the $2000 mark. For hours men backed their judgment, and it did not take Single G. many minutes to show them whether they were right or wrong.

This renewal was quite the most remarkable in the history of the stake, established in 1894. For fewer than 15 started, which is a record field. They represented 10 states, and men came here from everywhere to see what would be a thrilling contest.

However, it turned out that Single G. had the foot of the party, winning the first heat easily, and in the second heat, driven, but coming in right back and joggling off with the third.

In spite of a threatening day, the sport finally being interrupted by rain after the big stake had been paced, attendance was upward of 5000. Other races on the card created no more than passing interest, the classic being the magnet which brought the crowd.

In the Chamber of Commerce betting the big pool totaled $2480, with Single G. bringing $1200; Russell Boy, $75; Hal Boy, $250; Judge Ormonde, $250; Hal Boy, $250; Queen Abessa, $50; Came-ha, $50; Thistle Patch, $50; Fred W. $50, and the field, consisting of Miss Marham, Rastus, Alex E. Patrick M. and Luster, $50 each.

For hours his horses prevailed, Single G. always selling about even against the rest, and at the end bringing $100 against $300 on the 13 that were opposing him.

In addition to the Chamber of Commerce, which was the feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit program, two other races were featured and one was left uncompleted when rain put a stop to the going after one heat had been run off. The summaries:

SAVOR THE WINNER

GIVEN DECISION OVER JOE AZEVEDO OF CALIFORNIA IN FIRST BOAT AT BOSTON

BOSTON, July 25.—Millburn Saylor, the Indianapolis lightweight, who looked like a world-beater when he out-pointed Charley White here some weeks ago, was again victorious last night at the Atlas A. A. where he met Joe Azevedo of California in a 12-round bout. Saylor got the referee's decision but Azevedo carried him a bit in the first round.

Saylor did the fighting about all the time, but at times he was as wild as a March hare. He was anxious to stop Azevedo and he was not slow to take a ball at a gate, but he found that Azevedo knew something about the game.

A big handicap to Azevedo was his hitting. He is a strong fellow with plenty of grit and ability to assimilate punishment, but there was not a great deal of force in his punches.

Saylor started Azevedo's punches early and he took more than he could handle. Azevedo knew how to get Saylor's shift and most of the time he was in fast and smash the right to Saylor's ribs and wind.

Saylor did better the punch sometimes, but he did it and so clearly Azevedo's ball as it did on that of White's.

The bout was a fast one and at times there was some of the speediest exchanges in the club. It was in the last four rounds that Saylor gained the honors which earned him the decision. Up to that time the score stood two points for Saylor, three for Azevedo and the rest were even.

ALEXANDER THE GREAT NOW HAILED AS KING OF ALL MAJOR LEAGUE SLAB ARTISTS

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, better known as "Alexander the Great," star of Pat Moran's hurling staff, has at last come into his own. For several seasons Alexander has been going along winning a large proportion of his games, yet it was not until the present season, when his work far outshines that of any other slab artist in the business, that Grover began to receive proper recognition of his labors. Now he is hailed as the "king of pitchers," and such he truly is. He is well high unbeatable just at present, and when he steps into the box the other fellows' chances are 1 in 10 before he pitches a ball. If he continues through the season at the pace he is now traveling he will hang up a record never before achieved by any pitcher of the past or present.

WITH THE PADDED MITTS

The Johnny Dundee-Jack Britton fight which for Thursday night at Madison Square Garden has been postponed until Tuesday, Aug. 3.

The man who makes a living boxing can be depended upon always to offer his services in time of need. Already Milwaukee's best boxers have planned to fight at the Madison Square Garden, and the families of those who went down with the Eastland.

The news that Jake Ahearn has gone into the giant killing business has stirred up a London admirer of Frank Moran. He wants to bet $5000 a side that Ahearn can beat Moran and will bet an additional $1000 that Moran stops Ahearn inside of six rounds.

Dan McKelrick is incensed over the remark of Jess Willard, who claims that the negro fighters have gone back to nowhere.

He says that Joe Jeannette and Sam Langford would be easier for him to tell you how easy Jeannette would be for Willard, said Dan. "If the Joe's right hand behind his back and if he doesn't win, I'll give up this hard life of promoting and go to hog carrying."

Joe Shugrue, who had to give up fighting because of threatened blindness, is going into vaudeville. Joe has a real Irish tenor voice and can make a piano talk. Joe perhaps got jealous of Al's success in the movies.

Al is a star heavy man for the Vitagraph company. He was conspicuous in "The Goddess," especially when he turned his tin ear full on the movie camera. Even the full set of whiskers Al wore couldn't hide that mark of little service.

"Where's my manager?" asked Soldier Danfield as he stepped into Dan McKelrick's sanctum in New York City.

"McKelrick's home sick in bed," said little Bonnie Murphy.

"Oh, my goodness—oh, my goodness gracious—don't say that—what's his trouble?" cried the manager.

Mike McMahon, Frank Stevens and Bob Clarke, all died on one, said Danfield in alarm.

When McKelrick heard this he staggered out of bed, staggered into his clothes, staggered into his imported car and rode madly to his office. Dan was mighty pale all day as he thought of the three who had joined over the Danfield affairs before him.

Harry Dolok said that he was tired of reading the walls that Ray Brown is sending around the country claiming that Young Saylor was robbed of a decision in Winnipeg when Freddie Welsh went to the floor claiming a foul.

"Saylor was continually hitting low," he said, "and the referee had warned Saylor that the referee was so plainly intentional that the referee didn't even take the trouble to talk to Saylor about it. Saylor fouled Jack Britton in Boston seven times and finally was sent out of the ring. Britton got him a month later in Dayton and knocked him out before he could begin fighting. He hates a whipping. He had an offer of $1500 to fight Britton again in Boston and wouldn't listen to it."—New York Sun.

Lack of ring experience may mean defeat for Tom Cowler, the Jim Corbett discovery, tonight at the St. Nicholas rink, New York, at the hands of Grubbs Smith. Billy Bradenback, little training camp favorite out of the big Sunday afternoon when Cowler was around for the education of a lot of die-hard enthusiasts. To the critical eye Cowler boxed and looked like a fellow who was a powerful fellow and none of his sparring partners could stop his strenuous rushes.

"If he's beaten," whispered Chief Trainer Rodenback, "it won't be because of condition. I don't think a man could be in finer physical form. We had to curb him in his work, so anyone is he to be just right. He was working too hard when I came down here to take charge a few days ago. I've cut his road work away down. I know that too much road work won't improve your boxing wind at all."

Take Bobby Holland and Pete Hageban, for instance. They were boxing six day winners. They wanted to be boxers. They could run two or three days without getting winded, but when either of them put on the gloves he couldn't spar lightly for more than a minute and a half without blowing like a porcupine. Boxing requires one set of muscles and running another.

"Here's where you've got to be developed," said Billy and his hands over both his big shoulders. "Boxing with your hands held high is the only way to do it. I've been teaching Cowler to run his gloves down his opponent's arms to his hips. They could run two or three days without getting winded, but when either of them put on the gloves he couldn't spar lightly for more than a minute and a half without blowing like a porcupine. SALE OF STOLEN WIRE

CAPT. BROSNAK MAKES REPORT RELATIVES TO PURCHASE OF STOLEN PROPERTY

At last evening's meeting of the H. C. commission, Capt. Brosnak of the police department appeared to report a sale of stolen wire to David Ziskind, a wholesale iron and metal dealer with a place of business on Main street. Following the report on July 7 of a theft of 500 pounds of wire from the Lowell Insulated Wire Co., said the captain, the police made a tour of local junk shops and requested the proprietors to make known the purchase of any wire similar in description to that alleged to have been stolen. It is claimed that the wire was later found at the Ziskind establishment though the police had not been notified.

When given an opportunity to tell his version, Mr. Ziskind said the wire was purchased by one of his employees and as most of his business is done with large corporations he did not suspect that the wire had come from the hands of boys.

It was agreed by the commission to refer the matter to the police department and take no action until a report recommending disposition is received.

The following minor permits were granted:

Hawker and peddler, Bronslaw Gauda, 24 West Fourth street; Charles H. Howell, 575 Pine street. Sunday permits, Hammad Eldeh, 637 Middlesex street. A special minor's common violation license was granted to William J. Conant, 100 Church street at Stackpole and East Merrimack streets, where Alphonse J. Plouffe formerly ran the business. The latter had his license cancelled. The Sunday permit of Hammad Eldeh at 163 East Merrimack street was surrendered and cancelled.

Milady's Boudoir

Your Third Eye Sees
Of course the best remedy for eye fatigue, which comes often from straining the optic nerve or perhaps from holding fatigue, would be repose, resting the eyes and taking things as comfortably as possible. Indulge in an afternoon nap and keep as much as possible from rush and turmoil and overstrain.

But as this is impossible for most of us, we must have eyes externally to have them preserve their youthful strength and brightness. The eyeball should be of distilled water. It is good to get a little better still is better still water administered by means of the little eye cup that fits over the eye.

Nothing is more soothing to the eyes than this bathing. You can feel the nerves of the eyes responding to the treatment. To make the wash distill a teaspoon of boracic acid in a quart of filtered or distilled water, the eye cup is filled with this and each eye is bathed in it. Always wash the eye cup in clean water after bathing one eye before applying it to the other and keep the cup extremely clean at all times.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
"Four Feathers," a dramatic five-part Metro picture, with Howard Estabrook in the leading character, will be shown the final two times this afternoon and tonight. It follows closely the thrilling narrative contained in the novel of the same name by A. E. W. Mason. Estabrook, who comparatively new to the motion picture stage, has played an extremely difficult role, that of the disgraced Englishman who has been banished to a desert island, and who, when he returns, is hailed as a hero. In this manner he saved the lives of the three men who were about to be hanged. Later he is returned to England, where he re-won the love of his old fiancée. There are plenty of thrilling scenes in the production, and some of the scenes ery, that of the Sahara desert, is most unusual. It's a big show for little money, for in addition to the big feature, there is a two-reel Chaplin special, called "The Property Man," and four shorter pictures, beginning tomorrow and continuing the remainder of the week, Dorothy Donnelly in "Sealed Valley" will be the feature.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The appealing picture-play, "The Fighting Hope," will be seen today for the last time at the Merrimack Square theatre. During the last two days the story to possess an originality of plot which is unusual. "The Fighting Hope" will be the 5th episode of "Who Pays?" will also be presented today as will likewise be shown a Famous Weekly and a side-splitting, button-bustling comedy. On the last three days of this week "The Fighting Hope" by Hall-Canine, one of the great achievements of the motion picture age, will be presented in eight acts. This powerful play was shown at The Strand theatre for many weeks in New York at prices that were higher than a dollar. Patrons of the theatre may see the same under the new management, for the new management, for 50c, 10c, or 15c, in the afternoon, and in the evening the seats will be 5, 10, 15 and 25 cents.

BROUGHT DOWN AIRCRAFT

Territorials Not Boasting Over Feat for Victim Proved to be a British Army Machine

SOUTH END, Eng., July 28.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Two companies of territorials stationed near here brought down an aeroplane with rifle fire early this week, but they are not boasting over the feat for the victim proved to be a British army machine.

The territorials responsible for such an accurate but unfortunate feat of marksmanship were guarding Campsey Island where huge quantities of war munitions are stored and had instructions to shoot at any aviator flying over the island without giving an agreed signal to indicate that he was not bound on a hostile errand. The victim of their marksmanship either did not know of this rule or ignored it, and when he got within range a volley was fired at him. None of the bullets struck the aviator, but one of them punctured the

The issue over the destruction of the American steamer Leelanaw, which was sunk by a German submarine while en route from Archangel, Russia, to Belfast, was regarded almost identical with that of the destruction of the American sailing ship William P. Frye by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, for which the United States has demanded the payment of a monetary indemnity and full reparation for the violation of treaty stipulations. One difference, however, between the Frye and Leelanaw cases is to be found in the fact that the Americans on the Frye were taken on board the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich and carried to a place of safety at Newport News, while the captain and crew of the Leelanaw, according to reports from London, were taken aboard the German submarine, but were afterward required to take to their own boats. The Leelanaw incident will figure prominently in the controversy between this country and Germany. High officials were inclined to look upon it as a serious aggravation of the situation.

60 MILES ON SUBMARINE

Crew of Leelanaw Well Treated by Germans — Commander Apologizes for Sinking Ship

BERKELEY, via London, July 28, 6:15 a. m.—They could not have treated us more courteously than they did," was the unanimous verdict of Capt. Eugene Delk and the members of the crew of the American steamer Leelanaw when questioned last night regarding the encounter with a German submarine. They traveled about sixty miles on the deck of the submersible and became well acquainted with its crew, several of whom had been in America.

One member of the Leelanaw's crew remained aboard the submarine at his own request. He was one of the mess boys of the American ship, and as he was of German nationality, preferred joining the crew of the under water craft to the probability of internment in England. At Kirkwall another of the Leelanaw mess boys was found to be a German and was detained.

Capt. Delk, a resident of Philadelphia, made a matter-of-fact statement regarding the sinking of his ship and was not inclined to add details to the facts as he outlined them.

"There is no story in it," he said. "We stopped when a shot was fired behind us and then we had to leave. Our ship was shelled, bombed and torpedoed, but it took an hour and a half to sink her. The Germans took us aboard the submarine, carried us about 60 miles and then gave us directions for getting to Kirkwall, which we reached safely in about 12 hours."

Members of the crew of whom there are 32 besides the captain, explained that the German commander apologized for the necessity of sinking the ship but said it was forced upon him by the fact that the Leelanaw was carrying contraband and he was not in the habit of throwing overboard contraband cargoes. The crew of the German boat conversed affably in good English with the Leelanaw's men. The

WIFE OF "BIG BILL" ACTS

MRS. KELHER TO RESIST TAKING HUSBAND FROM STATE PRISON TO ATLANTA, GEORGIA

BOSTON, July 28.—Mrs. William J. Kelher, wife of "Big Bill" Kelher, who is serving a sentence of 18 years for his share in the wrecking of the National City bank of Cambridge, today will begin a legal fight to prevent the transfer of her husband from the state prison to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Atty. Harvey H. Pratt, who acted as counsel for Kelher during the battle in the courts, has agreed to accept the case, provided Mrs. Kelher desires his services, and she stated last night that she purposes placing the matter before her husband at the Charlestown prison this morning and that in all probability she will hold a conference with Mr. Pratt this afternoon.

It was stated that the local effort to keep Kelher in Charlestown will be based on the sentence imposed by Judge Hale in the United States district court and which was upheld in the United States district court of appeals. Kelher was sentenced to serve 18 years in the Massachusetts state prison, the judgment distinctly specifies that the states prison was to be the place of commitment. It is believed that serious legal questions can be raised.

Kelher was sentenced in April, 1912, on a charge of having aided and abetted George W. Coleman in wrecking the Cambridge bank, and has served approximately 42 months. Coleman at the same time was sentenced to 15 years and is confined in the county jail at Greenfield. He is also listed as a federal prisoner.

The instructions received yesterday by United States Marshal John J. Mitchell from the attorney general at Washington ordered the removal to Atlanta of Kelher and six other federal prisoners confined at Charlestown, but no instructions were received with regard to Coleman.

OAKLAND MFG. COMPANY

J. T. Conant & Co. Submit Report on Sale in Carroll Co., Md., of Manufacturing Plant and Village

Because of the continuous and very persistent inquiries at the office of J. T. Conant & Co., auctioneers, regarding just what happened at the sale of the plant of The Oakland Manufacturing company of Carroll county, Md., on Wednesday, July 21, the following report is submitted by Mr. Conant:

The manufacturing plant and village were purchased by Mr. John Melville of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania for $100,000; although Mr. Melville was the successful bidder there were four other equally active bidders for the property, and while the price may seem low it is much more than had been previously offered for it; it should be borne in mind that the plant is at least five miles from the nearest railroad station or trolley car line and between 70 and 80 minutes by automobile from Baltimore.

The bidding for the four tons of drugs, dye stuffs, chemicals, etc., was without hesitation and much of it practically without limit; an illustrative of this bidding for the drugs, etc., there were three bids submitted for them as a whole of $500, of $200, and of $300. They were sold in lots as scheduled in the catalogue, however, and realized $224.52—the lowest bid being 8 cents per pound for Lot 7 and the highest being $3.71 1/2 per pound for Lot 30; bids were made by the Arlington mills of Lawrence; the Mansfield Bleachery; Victor's plush mill of Swarthmore, Pennsylvania; Lonsdale Bleachery, Dye & Print Works, Inc., W. R. Taylor, Pollock-Huston company, and William Wood & Co. of Philadelphia; Merrimack Manufacturing company of Lowell and the Rosemont Dyeing company of Woonsocket.

There were many purchasers for the 30 tons of yarn and stock and the disposal did not take but a few minutes; the lowest price was 2 cents per pound for Lot 107 and the highest price was 35c. per pound for Lot 83; the principal purchasers were Wm. J. Johnson, W. R. Taylor, Charles Devlin, Charles J. Webb, John A. McCloskey of Philadelphia; B. Hey of Cincinnati; Frank D. Graves company and the Hudson River Waste company, Albany; H. Rawitter, New York City; Isaac Minsky of Philadelphia; the Stoughton mills and D. Brightman & Son of Boston.

There were over ninety attendants at the sale from a distance; and at least eighteen large automobiles touring cars were parked upon the premises at one time.

Lynch, chaplain of the society, had charge of the affair. The sports resulted as follows:

Creagan, second; Eastman, third. 100 yards dash—Donnelly, first; Creagan, second; Donnelly, third. 220 yards dash—Donnelly, first; Killbridge, second; Barrett, third. Broad jump—J. Creagan, first; T. GYPSY MOTH PEST

State Forester F. W. Rane Calls Attention to Best Time For Destruction of Them

State Forester F. W. Rane has issued a warning against the gypsy moth pest and announces the most opportune time for destroying them. In his statement he says:

"Just at this time, the devastation wrought by the gypsy moth is most noticeable, as the larvae or worms are now fully matured and having passed the feeding stage, are about to transform into the pupa state. In fact, in some localities, pupation has already taken place, and in some sections of the state, moths have emerged and are laying their eggs for future crops."

"The purpose of calling the attention of the public to this subject is to explain that nothing can be done at the present time to repair the damage caused by the moths during the season just closing. The most effective work can be accomplished in fighting the gypsy moth pest during the fall and winter by treating the egg masses with creosote or late in the spring immediately after the eggs are hatched by spraying the foliage with arsenate of lead."

"The time for determining just how destructive these moths are is now, and further, if they are very bad at present, the probabilities are that they will be equally bad or worse next season."

"The state forester, therefore, recommends that all woodland owners look their properties over now and if they desire any advice from his office as to future methods, that an application be made to his office, stating location, acreage, etc., or send for a blank form which can be filled in and returned."

DR. GATSPOULOS

Well Known Greek Doctor Elected President of Community

An interesting meeting of the directors of the local Greek community was held last night and Dr. John C. Gatsopoulos was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Demosthenes Geraleas. The church trouble, which existed in the community for some time, has been settled in a very amicable manner.

At Sunday's meeting Dr. Geraleas, who had been elected president for four months, tendered his resignation. The directors refused to take action upon the retirement of the doctor and the matter was laid on the table until last evening. Dr. Geraleas opened last evening's meeting and informed his fellow citizens he did not wish to remain in the chair of the president any longer. Accordingly, the resignation was accepted and Dr. John C. Gatsopoulos was unanimously chosen his successor.

Dr. Gatsopoulos is one of the best known members of the community. He has been a resident of this city for the past nine years, during which time he has made a host of friends. The new president will remain in office four months and his successor will be Dr. George Demosthenes.

The church question was taken up last evening and settled in a satisfactory manner for all concerned. It will be remembered that shortly after the election of Peter Tavoularis as president last year, Rev. Hariton Panagoulas was asked to resign as pastor of the Greek Orthodox church, and Rev. Nestor Scudis of Boston, accepted the call to Lowell. Rev. Fr. Panagoulas, however, remained in this city and kept a large following with him. It was voted last night to retain the services of both priests, and when the clergyman were interviewed on this matter, they expressed their satisfaction, as hereafter the duties of the church will be looked after by both priests. The revision of the bylaws of the community was also taken up, but no definite action was taken.

It is believed that although Dr. Geraleas resigned as president he will remain on the board of directors, which numbers 21. If he resigns as a director, however, the other directors will elect another member of the community to fill the vacancy.

HAS FULLY RECOVERED

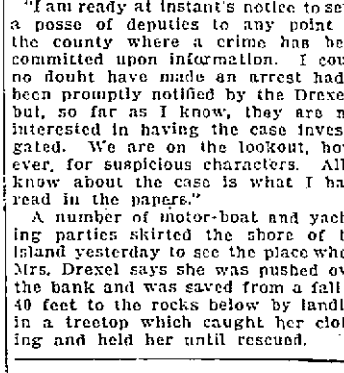

ISLESBORO, Me., July 28.—Although the permanent residents of the island are somewhat stirred up by the reported assault upon Mrs. G. W. C. Drexel of Philadelphia, who narrowly escaped serious injury by being pushed over a high bank from a narrow shore path on the Drexel estate at North Islesboro by an unknown man Saturday morning, the Drexels declined to make any statement to reporters yesterday and appeared annoyed that any publicity was given to the case. Mrs. Drexel entertained a party of friends at luncheon yesterday and assured those inquiring by telephone from Dark Harbor and Bar Harbor that she was quite well and had entirely recovered from the nervous shock. A story that the Drexel assault was a discharged employee who had made threats against her is in circulation, but cannot be confirmed. Mrs. Drexel is reported as saying that the man was small and dark and evidently an Italian. Sheriff Frank Cushman of Belfast, who has jurisdiction over Islesboro, which is in Waldo county, said yesterday: "I am ready at instant notice to send a posse of deputies to any point in the county where a crime has been committed upon information. I could not doubt have an arrest had I been promptly notified by the Drexels, but so far as I know, they are not interested in having the case investigated. We are on the lookout, however, for suspicious characters. All I know about the case is what I have read in the papers." A number of motor-boat and yachting parties skirted the shore of the island yesterday to see the place where Mrs. Drexel was pushed over the bank and was saved from a fall of 40 feet to the rocks below by landing in a treetop which caught her clothing and held her until rescued.

COWS KILLED BY POISON

TWO OTHERS VERY SICK—SUSPICION AROUSED THAT POISONING WAS MALICIOUS

OXFORD, July 28.—Five cows of a herd of 10 owned by Joseph H. Benoit were found dead in a pasture yesterday. Two others were violently sick.

An examination by Dr. Charles H. Perry of Worcester showed that death was due to poisoning.

How the animals secured the poison is a mystery and there is a strong suspicion that some one administered it maliciously. Mr. Benoit runs a milk route in North Oxford and lives on Federal Hill.

MAN SHOT JULY FIFTH DIED AT HOSPITAL TODAY

Czelaw Marzec Claimed He Was Assaulted on South Common and Robbed

After lying in a critical condition at St. John's hospital with a bullet in his jaw for over three weeks, Czelaw Marzec, the Williams street grocer, passed away at an early hour this morning. He was 42 years of age and is survived by a wife and six children.

In an effort to ascertain the cause of the man's death which has proven a mystery too deep for the local police to solve, Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs will perform an autopsy on the body which now lies at the rooms of Undertaker Archambault.

Early on the morning of July 5, Marzec staggered and reported to his wife and friends that he had been shot and robbed of $20 within a few yards of the South common. On the night of July 5, the common was thronged with people witnessing the display of fireworks and at that time it seemed strange that none in the vicinity was attracted by the shooting.

Continuing his story, Marzec said after regaining strength he walked to the banks of the Concord river where he lay in an unconscious condition until early in the morning. He then managed to get home and ask for assistance. The ambulance was called and the man was taken to St. John's hospital. A pocketbook in which he is said to have carried money at all times was found empty in his inside coat pocket.

The police were immediately called into the case and since that date Sgt. Petrie, Inspector Walsh and Lieut. Maher have spent time on the case. Residents of the vicinity of South and Summer streets were interviewed to learn if a shot had been heard or a man had been seen knocked down but no information was secured. Marzec was visited at the hospital but he stuck to his story that he had been robbed and that the robbery occurred within 25 feet of the South common.

Today Supt. Welch of the police department stated that from what has been learned he is positive that the shooting was not the work of robbers and was not committed near the South common. The police claim there was another motive for the shooting but say that the man would give out no important information even while on the dangerous list at the hospital. The bullet entered Marzec's jaw and lodged in back of the nose. On account of his weak condition it was impossible to extract the bullet.

PICKPOCKETS SENT TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

Harry N. Davis and Charles Ryan, with several aliases, who have police records in various parts of the United States and who were arrested in this city by Traffic Officer Edward Connelly a week ago yesterday charged with larceny from the person in that they extracted a wallet containing $2.01 from the pocket of Bartholomew Kestner of Silver Lake, Wilmington, were found guilty by Judge Enright each sentenced to six months in the house of correction at East Cambridge. Supt. Welch conducted the case for the prosecution while William A. Hogan appeared for the defendants. Both appeared and were held in the sum of $500 each for their appearance in superior court on the first Monday in August.

Mr. Kestner, the complainant, was the first witness for the government and he proved a very amusing and interesting one. He said he came to this city last Tuesday for his weekly visit and after doing some errands boarded a Reading bound car. In the back pocket of his trousers he carried a pocketbook which was in its place before getting into the car, he said. After finding a seat near the rear door, Officer Connors stepped up to him and asked him if he had lost his pocketbook. Upon feeling into his pocket he found the pocketbook missing and then went to the station with the two defendants and the officer. In the pocketbook, he said, was a two

Today's Act of Violence Followed Burial of Political Prisoners Who Were Massacred in Prison Yesterday —U. S. Warship Rushes to Scene

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 28.—A mob of Haitians today removed Villemain Guillaume, president of Haiti, from the French legation where he took refuge yesterday, and shot him to death in front of the building.

Victims of Massacre Buried
This act of violence followed immediately the burial of the political prisoners who were massacred in prison yesterday, at the time of the revolutionary outbreak against President Guillaume.

The mob was composed in large part of relatives of the victims of this wholesale execution. The crowd invaded the French legation and seized Guillaume. M. Girard, the French minister to Haiti, protested vigorously but he was powerless before the fury of the people.

Dragged Into Street
Guillaume was dragged from the protection of the legation. Once in the street the crowd surged around him with imprecations and shot him to death.

Even then the anger of the people was not appeased. The body of the president was mutilated, and tied to the end of a rope, it was dragged through the streets of the city. The people of Port Au Prince are in a state of intense excitement and further violence is feared.

U. S. Warship to Scene
The arrival of the American cruiser Washington, with Rear Admiral Caperton on board, is expected at any moment. The Washington has been on the north coast of Haiti. M. Girard was counting on the coming of a cruiser to afford protection to the legation.

AWAIT DETAILS AT CAPITAL
WASHINGTON, July 28.—Full reports from Rear Admiral Caperton on the latest Haitian revolutionary outbreak at Port Au Prince were awaited today by officials of the United States government. The information was called for following the receipt of official advices reporting an uprising in the Haitian capital against President Guillaume.

Official advices received here from Port Au Prince reported an outbreak, but gave few details. Unofficial information said that former President Zamor and 160 political prisoners had been executed by order of Gen. Oscar, governor of Port Au Prince, who later was slain himself by a mob after taking refuge in the Dominican legation. That President Guillaume and family had taken refuge in the French legation, which had been threatened with attack; that the presidential palace had partially been destroyed and that the revolutionists were in possession of the city. The reports made no mention of foreigners having been harmed.

The attempt made yesterday to seize President Guillaume failed because of the energetic protestations of the French minister. It is generally feared that the calm among the inhabitants of the capital is the result of consternation over the reign of terror that has prevailed for several days and that it will be succeeded by a great outburst of fury when reaction sets in. The body of Gen. Oscar today remained unburied before the consulate of the Dominican republic, where it had fallen after he had faced a firing squad. The governor had taken

Czar's Line Not Yet Broken—German Attacks Along Narew Checked — Russians Holding Along Bug—Germans Sink More Ships

LONDON, July 28, 12.27 p. m.—Though the Germans now hold a great line from the Gulf of Riga sweeping around Warsaw, thence encircling the city and stretching away to the Galician frontier near Sokal it is estimated they have lost 500,000 men, perhaps more, in this most ambitious movement of the war and the Russian front is not yet broken.

On the Narew river, north of the Polish capital, the Russians have made a stubborn resistance, holding Field Marshal von Hindenburg for the time being in check, while to the south the combined Austro-German forces struggling to seize the Lublin-Chelm railway have been for days on the threshold of success without being able actually to achieve their goal.

Fighting on this latter front has been renewed with great intensity and the Germans claim they have improved their position on the extreme right which is resting on the Bug river.

Immediately west of Warsaw comparative quiet prevails, and it is along the Lublin-Chelm sector or in the Narew river region that it is believed a crisis will be reached.

Which one of these fronts is of the greater strategic importance London critics cannot agree, but the material point is admitted by all that a German victory on either front would mean the fall of Warsaw.

Premier Praises Russians for Gallant Efforts to Stem Tide of Invasion—Confident of Victory

LONDON, July 28, 4.33 p. m.—The war has become and is likely to continue for some time a contest of endurance, Premier Asquith told the house of commons this afternoon while making a general review in moving the adjournment of parliament from tomorrow until Sept. 14.

The premier remarked: "We should be ungrateful and insensitive indeed if we did not recognize at this moment the indescribably gallant efforts being made by our Russian allies to stem the tide of invasion and to retain inviolate the integrity of their possessions."

"I don't think in the whole of military history there has been a more magnificent example of discipline and endurance and of both individual and collective initiative than has been shown by the Russian army in the last seven weeks."

"Our new allies, the Italians, are with carefully prepared movements, steadily gaining ground, making their way towards the objective which we have Heve in a very short time will be within their reach."

The premier declared that the British government's confidence in the results of the Dardanelles operations was undiminished and emphasized his confidence in the victory of the French and British armies in the west.

Referring to the fact that next week would see the completion of a year of war, Mr. Asquith remarked that "the British fleet today was stronger than at the beginning of the war, and to its quiet and unobserved activity is due the fact that the seas are substantially clear."

"After all," said the premier, "this submarine menace, serious as it has appeared to be, is not going to inflict fatal or substantial injury on British trade. The seas are clear."

"We have our supplies of food and raw materials, upon which we and the rest of the country depend, flowing in upon us in the same abundance and with the same freedom; and I may say without much exaggeration, judging from the insurance rates and other matters with the same immunity from serious hazards and risks as in times of peace."

THREE KILLED ON COASTER

Car Left Rail at Coney Island—Woman Saved Herself and Son by Clinging to Track

NEW YORK, July 28.—Three persons lost their lives when a roller coaster on the "Rough Rider" at Coney Island jumped the track late yesterday while traveling at high speed. The dead are:
James McDonough, Jr., aged 24, of Coney Island;
Miss Ruth Cuddy, aged 19, of Long Island City;
Mrs. Anna Hartman, aged 55, of Brooklyn.
Mrs. Clarence Moles of Spring Valley, N. Y., and her 7-year-old son Edward, and other occupants of the car, escaped injury. While clinging to the side of the track they were rescued by passing policemen.
The accident occurred at Jones Walk on the Bowers, where the last serious mishap at Coney Island took place nearly six years ago, when 17 persons were injured in similar fashion on the same coaster.
All the passengers were on their second ride, when something went wrong with the mechanism of the car and it whizzed along at high speed at a point over the Bowers and left the rails.
McDonough, who was driving, was killed instantly, his skull being crushed. Miss Cuddy and Mrs. Hartman were thrown, the former dying of fracture of the skull in a hospital and the latter of a similar injury on the way to the same institution.
Mrs. Moles escaped serious injury and saved her son by her presence of mind when, after being thrown clear of the car she clung to the track, holding her son in one arm until they were rescued by the police.

DIVERS SEEK HUNDREDS OF BODIES HELD FAST IN BOTTOM OF EASTLAND

PHOTO © 1915 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

It is believed that several hundred bodies are still imprisoned in the hull of the Eastland, which cannot be reached until the vessel is raised, which task will take probably several days. It is also believed that under the hull are still more bodies buried in the mud. Coroner Hoffman is of the opinion that within and without the hull there are between 500 and 700 bodies. If his opinion proves correct the death toll will exceed 1500. Because of the turbid condition of the water in the vessel—it is black and filled with debris, such as luncheon baskets, chairs, furniture and other articles—the work of recovering bodies is exceedingly slow. Some of the divers said there were at least 200 bodies in the forward part of the ship, access to which was barred by heavy steel gratings and other impediments, impossible of removal below water. In the accompanying illustration is shown a diver just after he came from below bearing the body of a girl.

Corn on the Cob —the Roasting Ear

Is not more delicious than the

New Post Toasties

In the growth of corn there is a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious (roasting ears). As it slowly ripens this hardens and finally becomes almost flinty.

This nutritious part of the corn is cooked, seasoned, rolled thin, and toasted by a new process which enhances the true corn flavour.

Different from ordinary corn flakes, the New Post Toasties have a distinctive form and flavour; and they keep their appetizing crispness, even after cream or milk is added.

These Superior Corn Flakes come oven-fresh in tight wax-sealed packages; and they cost no more than ordinary "corn flakes." Insist upon having

THE MAN IN THE MOON

That most of our Massachusetts cities and towns are alive to the fact that tuberculosis is a serious disease and are doing effective work toward reducing its ravages is an encouraging thing to contemplate.

The results attained which are seen in the frequent discharge of patients with a clean bill of health show the effectiveness of the modern methods of treatment of this disease.

Fall River tuberculosis hospital affords accommodations for 65 patients, and of course has a large waiting list. These latter are under the observation and treatment of the city's physicians. But there is no question that Fall River will erect additional pavilions for the treatment of all its cases. New Bedford has a T. B. hospital conducted by private philanthropy where about 75 patients are being treated.

The city of Cambridge maintains a hospital where about 70 persons with tuberculosis are being cared for; and is planning, I understand, to enlarge it so that some hundreds may receive treatment. I cite these three cities, two of which are peculiarly in Lowell's class, to show what they are doing for their people afflicted with tuberculosis, and by contrast to show what our city isn't doing.

Here in Lowell we have a population largely engaged in pursuits and living under conditions which promote the contraction and spread of tuberculosis. It would perhaps be difficult to name the number of our people, more or less, having the germ of this disease, but it is safe to say that in various stages it would reach into the hundreds. We know that at least 90 per cent of all these cases exist among individuals and families who haven't the means of affording themselves proper attention. They cannot receive adequate medical treatment, nursing, nourishment or intelligent direction. It is needless to say they cannot go into the country or otherwise segregate themselves and live on pure air, fresh eggs and milk. We know that most of these people live in close, thickly settled localities and the above conditions prevailing there become a constant menace to the whole community.

Under the present state of affairs, however, in not a few cases, a chance for their life. If they live, they live; if they die, they die; and no thanks to a municipality whose first care should have been to help afford them that chance and right for life and the pursuit of happiness. Surely, we know all this and more. We know that the law of the state declares that persons with contagious diseases shall not become pauperized because of treatment by public health boards, and hence it is that our local board in T. B. cases brought to their attention provide treatment, nursing, medicine and, oftentimes, provisions for needy patients. But as yet there is no provision made for the removal of a patient to a place for consistent care, and he is at best but a makeshift as we consider the greater and more important work the city of Lowell should be engaged in at this hour.

Who does not recall, in the years that have gone, some family wiped out of existence by the ravages of consumption? It is improbable that in these days of advanced knowledge of the disease—which we call tuberculosis now—you are not witnessing some family dying one after the other. Only recently I was talking with a man, himself infirm and needy, who told me that he had lost his two sons and a daughter, all dying of consumption. His oldest son died at the age of 22, the younger at 21. His daughter died when she was 19. He has one child left—a girl of 17; and the old man said he had noticed of late that she seemed changed, and he further would go in the same way. Does any one believe that this old man's sons and daughters, under our enlightened laws, had a chance for their lives? And does anybody in the city of Lowell think that the ravages of tuberculosis will be a chance? And, further, will anybody, be he clergyman, editor, politician or just plain citizen, rise up and say she shouldn't have a chance?

Contagious Diseases

For several years the law of the state relative to contagious diseases, which takes in tuberculosis, has been disregarded by the city's servants with a strange persistency which makes us think that the city of Lowell either has a pull or is more powerful than the state itself. It has been a persistency worthy a better cause. The state's requests have been seemingly ignored while its demands and threats have apparently been treated with disdain. The attitude of our rulers in this matter of a hospital for contagious diseases have at last found a fitting echo in the recent declaration of the editor of the sheet who stated that the establishment of a "contagious hospital" would be of doubtful utility, and, what was even more important, of much expense for the poor taxpayers. This utterance is in keeping with the various obstructors, land schemers and others of like ilk, all of which have attended this hospital matter and which the state of Massachusetts and the patient people of Lowell apparently stand for, and thus it is we still find ourselves enjoying the enviable position of being, with one exception, the only city in the state that does not maintain a hospital for its contagious diseases.

How we have thus far succeeded in getting by the mandates of the state board of health I don't know; but we do know that there seems to be in this community a fearful lack of action which should spring from the common dictates of humanity.

THE MAN IN THE MOON.

The French Maid Says:

Gift Jewelry

"A girl friend has a birthday next week and I want to give her something in jewelry, but not too expensive," said Marjorie. "Can you give me some ideas, Marie?"

"Enameled lockets, in delicate shades and with chains to match are pretty," began Marie, "and would give a nice touch of color to a lingerie dress or blouse. In particular keeping with such effects are the old fashioned onyx lockets set with tiny pearls and suspended from heavy onyx chains. Indeed the woman who is the fortunate possessor of a fine piece of old jewelry would do well to have it remodeled and reset, as the Vogue for these lovely old things is apt to be long lived."

"Cameos are much in evidence, both in necklaces and brooches. Combined with imitation pearls, many of the pink cameos make most beautiful necklaces and defy detection. Breast pins and bracelets of carved ivory have also been revived. The pins, large and round and finely carved, cost from twenty to forty dollars. Hat pins make modest and nice gifts. The simple small gold pins, round or pear shaped, take the lead in favor. When set with stones at all they are usually selected with a view to carrying out the color scheme of the hat. Crystal jewelry, usually in the round rock crystal and variously engraved, is having a decided vogue, especially in watch pendants and brooches."

"The new bracelets are broader than formerly, perhaps half an inch at the widest point, from which they taper gradually towards the end. The flexible styles have the preference, and many novel designs in these are shown. Almost unusual are the bracelets of diamonds in which a molire effect is obtained by the use of a wavy line of sapphires."

A VERY PECULIAR CASE

MR. AND MRS. RICE RETURN
FROM WORK IN MILL TO FIND
THEIR HOME WRECKED.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rice on the third floor of a block at 45 East Merrimack street was entered sometime yesterday and everything breakable in the tenement smashed on the floor and other articles soiled and turned topsy-turvy. The case is one of the most peculiar that has been called to the attention of the police for years.

When Mr. and Mrs. Rice, who are employed in local mills returned from their work at six o'clock last evening they were bewildered by finding the household dishes broken into a thousand pieces and spread all over the floor. Pictures were torn from their places, tables and chairs turned upside down and the chambers were thoroughly ransacked. When the couple left in the morning everything was in proper condition. It is believed that the person or persons who performed the contemptible act gained an entrance to the tenement by opening the back door with a key.

An investigation by the police showed that women apparently drunk had been seen in the hall during the day. Noises were also heard in the tenement about noon but neighbors thought Mr. and Mrs. Rice were having dinner at home. A box of snuff was the only clue left though, it is said, the occupants of the tenement gave the police some information that resulted in arrests.

AT MOUNTAIN ROCK

Angel Guardian Sodality of St. Joseph's Parish Will Hold Annual Outing Tomorrow

The committee in charge of the annual outing of the Angel Guardian sodality of St. Joseph's parish, which will be held at Mountain Rock Thursday, held its final meeting at the college hall last night and completed arrangements for the event, which promises to be the best in the history of the organization.

Rev. Joseph Denis, O. M. I., spiritual director of the sodality, presided, and considerable business was transacted. It was decided to have special electrica leave Paige street for the grounds at 9 a. m. and the following program of sports will be carried out at the grove:

At 10 a. m. a baseball game will be played between two teams composed of the senior boys. Dinner will be served at 12 m. and at 1 p. m. a baseball game will be played between teams composed of Junior members. Other events will consist of the following: 100 yard dash, for seniors, 100 yard dash for boys between 10 and 14 years, 500 yard dash for seniors, three-legged race for seniors, three-legged race for juniors, shoe race for juniors, potato race for juniors, pie eating contest open to all, backward race open to all, 25 yard dash for juniors. Every Day Etiquette

"Will you kindly tell me what one should do when attending a reception and in the receiving line are some women one does not know?" asked Hortense.

"The hostess will present each guest to the persons assisting her in receiving," advised her sister.

"How many cards should a bachelor leave when calling on a married woman who has a young woman visiting her?" was Jack's query.

"Three cards; one for the host, one for the hostess and one for the guest," said his father.

"What is the proper thing to write on visiting cards when one wishes to use them for luncheon invitations?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"On the lower left hand corner of the card write: 'Luncheon at half past one o'clock, July 28th,' was her mother-in-law's advice.

"Please tell me what initials are used on linens and silverware, before one is married," demanded Maude.

"The initials of the bride-to-be are used on all articles marked before the wedding day," replied her aunt.

"When one wishes to give a piece of silver to a girl about to be married, what monogram should be engraved upon it?" inquired George.

"The monogram of the girl's maiden name should be engraved on the silver," replied his father.

"At an afternoon tea should I remove my gloves before or after the tea is handed to me?" asked Winnie.

"It is not customary for afternoon callers to remove their gloves when taking tea," said her aunt.

BUILD BRIDGE THIS YEAR

Mr. Morse Wants to Start Work on New Bridge — Mr. Duncan Says "Too Late"

"I cannot see any reason why the Pawtucket bridge should not be built this year," said Commissioner Charles J. Moore to a Sun reporter this morning. "The plans, with a few changes," have been approved by Prof. George F. Swain and the municipal council should get busy at once."

Mr. Morse said he will ask for a conference of the municipal council before Friday in order to take proper action with reference to the plans. The architects, who are drawing the plans for the reconstruction of the Memorial building will have the said plans ready tomorrow. As soon as received the plans will be turned over to the city solicitor for examination and a conference of the municipal council will be held. It is expected bids will be asked for next week.

The commissioner argues that if action at Friday morning's adjourned meeting, and he hopes the council will decide to start work on the new construction at once.

work is started at once. Engineer Walter R. Denman will have the bridge ready for traffic by Dec. 1. In order to do this, however, they will have to have two or three gangs of men at work and this will mean $2500 or $3000 more than the actual cost of the bridge. Mr. Merce does not believe the Bay State Street Railway Co. will donate $1000 toward the construction of the bridge and he says it is a loss of time to be awaiting the report of the engineers.

"The changes proposed by Professor Swain," continued Mr. Merse, "make the plans practically the same as when first drawn by Mr. Denman and I am confident that the Lyonn Chamber of Commerce is being held at the Vesper Country club in Tyngsboro today. The excursionists, numbering about 350 left their headquarters in Lynn in 7½ automobiles.

It will be remembered that in the latter part of June Engineer Denman stated if he did not get busy on the construction of the bridge by the first week of July it would be impossible for him to finish the construction this year. He argued at that time that the mixture of cement could not be done during the cold season, but now, according to Mr. Morse, Mr. Denman is willing to tackle the job, although the month of July has gone by, and he assures the new bridge will be opened for traffic on or before Dec. 1. Commissioner Duncan, when later seen by the writer, said in his opinion it is impossible to build the bridge this year. He argues no work can be done until the repairs at the dam are finished and this will be along in the latter part of October, and then it will be too cold to start the construction of a bridge. He said the council will not take a chance in having work done in the river, which later might be entirely destroyed by the flowage of water, and it will not be other sporting events included a 100-yard dash, three-legged race, obstacle race, hoop race, fat men's race, quoits, bowling on the green, golf and other amusements. Prizes were given the winners of each event.

The return home will be made at 6 o'clock this evening. The committee in charge consisted of John E. Austin, Chairman; William Day, Jr., Secretary; Eugene B. Fraser, treasurer, and a score of others.

The visitors were given cards containing the drawing of a key and

FOR PEACE IN MEXICO

Faction Leaders Plan to End Hostilities—U. S. May Place an Embargo on Arms

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Reports of a new peace move in Mexico attracted attention in official circles today. Advice received here said that representatives of the various factions in the southern republic were consulting their leaders in an effort to bring about a peace parley either with or without Gen. Carranza. This move was said to be in anticipation of a final appeal by the United States to the faction leaders to compromise their differences and restore peace in Mexico. The United States is said to be contemplating a restoration of the ban on the export of war munitions to Mexico as a part of its program to end hostilities.

MEXICO CITY CUT OFF

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Mexico City was still cut off from the outside world today and Secretary Lansing said efforts to get first hand information of conditions there had failed. The forthcoming step to be taken by the United States with respect to Mexico he would not discuss. Reports that Gen. Felipe Angeles, Villa's military adviser, was again on the border were denied. The Villa agency received a telegram denying that Carranza troops had captured Corral, Sonora, and were marching to attack Guaymas.

The charges against him were similar to those in Davis' case. Many times they were charged with disorderly conduct.

Neither was able to furnish the $500 bail today and was committed to jail at noon.

The Liquor Question

Bridge Sullivan was found guilty of two complaints charging her with illegally keeping and the illegal sale of liquor and fined $200 and sentenced to two months in the house of correction. She appealed and was held in $500 surety for her appearance in the superior court.

Patrolman Charlie Sharkey testified that on Sunday, July 18, he went to the defendant's house on Adams street and was invited inside by one of Mrs. Sullivan's roomers. He asserted that he purchased a half pint of whiskey and saw another man buy two half pints.

Officers Hession and Murphy told the court that in searching Mrs. Sullivan's house empty bottles, empty jugs and other receptacles for keeping liquor were found locked in trunks, behind stoves and in bedrooms. A sealed quart was found in a trunk and a half pint behind a stove.

Other Court Cases

William Hook was adjudged guilty of stealing a bicycle from Frederick S. Cole of Chelmsford and ordered to pay a fine of $25 within the next three months.

When George Mozier was arraigned accused of fraudulently conveying a diamond ring which he bought on a conditional sale from Charles A. Senter, it was announced that a settlement was made between the defendant and Mr. Senter. The ring had been sold to a young man named Cole for $12. Upon receiving back his $12 Mr. Cole willingly turned over the ring. The case was then placed on file.

George Peter, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon upon Ralph Randall in his case continued until tomorrow. Kate Smith was found guilty of being a common drunkard and her case was continued until Saturday for sentence. Among the defendants for drunkenness was one Mary Shinnick whose case was continued until tomorrow. In the meantime, an attempt will be made to ascertain whether or not she was implicated in the ransacking of the tenement on East Merrimack street last night.

LATE WAR NEWS

provinces advancing along a front approximately 50 miles wide towards Vilna, with a view to seizing the railway from Warsaw to Petrograd, are daily becoming a more potent factor in the fighting, for linked up with the forces to the southwest, they give the Germans a front of three hundred miles with which to effect a vast turning movement north of Warsaw.

20 Miles From Riga

The troops operating against Riga, from which city they are only 20 miles distant, are considered in the nature of an independent column and it is these that have come under the fire of the Russian warships.

Italian gains on the Carso plateau and French gains in the Vosges mountains are about the only developments in the other theaters.

Closer Check on Spies

A closer check on possible spies is indicated in an official notice published in England today to the effect that travelers from the United Kingdom to Scandinavian countries will not be permitted to leave this country on or after August 1 without special permit from the home office. This restriction applies to British subjects as well as to neutrals, with the exception of soldiers and sailors.

SUMMARY OF TODAY'S WAR NEWS

The severe fighting on the Italian-Austrian frontier which has been going on for approximately a week shows no signs of a let-up nor is there any clear indication of a definite outcome. The Italian official reports continue to claim a succession of either advances or the holding of the Austrians in check. The Austrians, who are contesting every foot of the Italian advance with stubborn determination, have lost 3200 prisoners to the Italians, according to an official statement given out in Rome.

Try to Prevent Retreat

In addition to the capture of Warsaw, the immediate objective of the German-Polish campaign of the past two weeks, the troops of the German empire, evidently are making a special endeavor just now to cut communication between Warsaw and Petrograd with the purpose of preventing the successful retreat of Warsaw falls, of the Russian army now defending that city. To this end are directed their operations north of Kovno according to despatches from Petrograd as well as their advance upon Brest-Litovsk by way of Cheim and the right bank of the river Bug. The issues still are undecided with the Russians claiming temporary advantages.

Observers in Petrograd are watching today with particular interest three points around Warsaw, where the German maneuvers are regarded as of especial importance.

There are the operations on the left bank of the Narw, to the north of the Polish capital; against the town of Cheim, to the southeast, where possession of the railroad is the point at issue, and along the Bug.

Enormous German Reserves

The Germans, according to Russian official reports, have brought up enormous reserves, but nevertheless, the Russian authorities say, the troops of Emperor Nicholas have taken the offensive successfully at several points.

German Attacks Checked

The German attacks along the Narw have been held and along the Bug the Russian soldiers are holding firm. On the other hand German troops under Field Marshal von Mackensen have made progress toward the Lublin-Chelm railroad.

In the southern area of Russian Poland, between the Vistula and the Vepz, operations appear to have reached a temporary standstill. An offset to this inactivity the Germans are widening the sphere of their hostilities toward the east.

Capt. Eugene Dolk of the American steamer Leelanaw, sunk by a German submarine off Scotland July 25, reports from Aberdeen that he and his crew were treated with the utmost courtesy by their German captors.

Russian Reinforcements

Russia, according to a despatch from Petrograd is making preparations to strengthen her armies in the field. She is about to order a general mobilization through Siberia, she has, furthermore, called to the colors the new dollar bill and a dollar and one cent in change.

Under cross examination the witness said he lived with his daughter who provided for his support. When asked how long since he had worked, Kestner stood in silence for a minute and then shouted to a young girl among the spectators, "Carrie, how long have you been supporting me?" He said his daughter was very good to him and allowed him all the money he wished. He admitted that he had three glasses of beer before getting on the Reading car last Tuesday.

"Are you sure you didn't have any more?" queried Mr. Hogan.

"Well, if I had a hundred it's none of your business or anybody else's; it was my money," he said.

When asked what he did the remainder of the two hours he was in Lowell, witness said he looked around the city and was not looking for a chance to steal pocketbooks. He was very persistent in stating that his pocketbook and money did not "fly out of his pocket."

The man who shares the credit for the arrest with Traffic Officer Connors was the next witness and proved to be Alexander Anderson, a foreman for the Lowell Electric Light corporation. He resides at 45 Congress street. He said that while working in Merchants square on July 20 he saw the two defendants follow Mr. Kestner to a street car. As the man attempted to get on the step, said the witness, he was jostled by the two alleged pickpockets. Ryan knocked off his hat which fell in front of Mr. Kestner. In the confusion, he said, he saw a hand reach into the complainant's pocket and pull out the billfold. Davis attempted to cover up the act by reaching out his coat. Mr. Anderson could not identify the men who took the pocketbook, but said he was positive it was one of the two under arrest. He stood on the sidewalk, about 30 feet from the car and after seeing the act notified Officer Connors. He said that Kestner appeared to be under the influence of liquor.

John Fitzpatrick, a conductor on the City State street railway, said that he found Mr. Kestner's pocketbook underneath a newspaper directly in front of where Davis sat. Under cross examination he admitted that the old man who claimed to have been robbed sat only a few inches from the spot. Mr. Kestner appeared to be feeling "pretty good," he said.

As a result of the information given him by Mr. Anderson, Traffic Officer Connors said he entered the car and asked the two men to accompany him to the station. At that time both said they came from Boston.

Supt. Welch told of his conversation with the prisoners. He said one gave the name of Harry N. Davis, Little Queens, Brooklyn, N. Y. He gave his occupation as a waiter and said he had worked in New York city and at Coney Island. He came to Lowell looking for a job but upon failing to see any signs out, described "Help Wanted" decided to return to Boston.

Ryan purported to live at 125 Huntington avenue and said he worked for a hederdasher at 142 Tremont street, Boston. He claimed he never saw Davis before reaching Lowell.

The government concluded its case here, and Attorney Hogan asked that both defendants be dismissed on account of lack of evidence to sustain the charges. Judge Enright said he was satisfied that both were guilty and would only consider the question of sentence. Supt. Welch then produced pictures of the defendants taken recently in Philadelphia with records written on the back. He asked the court for a severe sentence, claiming both were pickpockets of a national reputation, known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Judge Enright stated that he had jurisdiction over the case and the maximum sentence was five years in state's prison or two years in jail. He imposed the six months sentence to the house of correction and there was another argument between Supt. Welch and Lawyer Hogan relative to an increase in the bail, the former claiming that the bail should be increased to assure the appearance of both at superior court. Lawyer Hogan opined that as the defendants appeared in court today he had shown their good faith and would not attempt to disappear. The bail was finally raised from $200 to $500. Lawyer Hogan protesting and Supt. Welch asking for a larger increase.

Finger Prints Taken

The identity of the defendants was learned by the finger print system that has been operated so successfully by Messenger John J. Pinder during the past few months. After the arrest of the pair their finger prints were taken and sent to Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. Answers were received from the police of all cities, except Boston, where neither was known.

The most important information was received from Capt. Robert D. Cameron of the criminal bureau of Philadelphia. He said Davis is known principally as Michael Landers, but also as Michael Gorman, Sager, Sheer, Harry Gorman and Harry Davis. According to the record he has been arrested three times in Brooklyn, 20 times in New York city, once in Lansing, Mich., and twice in Philadelphia. The charges include picking pockets, disorderly conduct, vagrancy, grand larceny from person. He has served time in the New York workhouse, Kings county penitentiary and other institutions.

Ryan is known as Frank Martin, Frank Hart, Harry Hart, Charles Bow-

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

The German press need not assume that the American contention for freedom of the seas applies to Germany alone. It refers to Great Britain, France or any other belligerent or non-belligerent who would violate it. President Wilson's statement on this point was quite clear and comprehensive, so much so that the London papers say it concerns England as well as Germany, and why not?

Here is the statement from the American note on this point:

"The government of the United States will continue to contend for that freedom (freedom of the seas) from whatever quarter violated, without compromise and at any cost. It invites the practical cooperation of the imperial German government at this time when cooperation may accomplish most and this great common object be most strikingly and effectively achieved."

That phrase "from whatever quarter violated" has caused the British press to stop cackling over it, and to say "that means us." It certainly refers to England against which charges are piling up; but of a very different nature from those against Germany. England has held up a great number of charges for investigation and the owners where they violated no law will claim heavy damages. There will be a very long reckoning on such matters, but England is not accused of causing the loss of American lives.

Eight American vessels have been attacked since the war began. Three of them were sunk by mines, one was sunk by a German cruiser, one was attacked by a German aeroplane, two were torpedoed and sunk and one was torpedoed but not sunk. In addition two British steamers carrying Americans were torpedoed and sunk.

In all 121 American citizens lost their lives from German attacks on the sea. The list is as follows:—

January 26—William P. Frye, American, sunk by cruiser No dead
February 26—Evelyn, American, mine explosion.....One dead
February 22—Carib, American, mine explosion.....Two dead
March 28—Falaba, British, torpedoed.....One dead
April 3—Greenbriar, American, mine explosion.....No dead
April 30—Gulllight, American, torpedoed, not sunk.....Three dead
May 1—Cushington, American, torpedoed by aeroplane.....No dead
May 7—Lusitania, British, torpedoed.....114 Americans dead
May 25—Nebraskan, American, torpedoed.....No dead
July 25—Leelanaw, American, torpedoed.....No dead
Total	121 dead

That list is certainly long enough to justify the protest made by President Wilson against the German mode of submarine warfare. Yet the president in his attitude makes no discrimination as between the belligerents. Any other position would be inconsistent with our neutrality and would descend to the status of mere partisanship. The substance of the note may be misconstrued and distorted but it will stand and go down in history as one of the most important steps towards maintaining the freedom of the seas taken by any nation in modern times—provided the United States backs up its declaration by action, and this the president says will be done at any cost.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION

Over a month ago Engineer Denman said that unless work on the Pawtucket bridge were started right away it could not be built this year. Now, he says, if the work be started without delay the bridge can be completed by December 1. Usually there is a good deal of frosty weather before December 1 in this latitude. When candidates in charge of city departments try to keep street or sewer work in which cement is used, going up till election day, early in November, there is generally frost enough to spoil the cement work. Occasionally also there is high water in the river before December 1, and it would not be creditable to Mr. Denman nor profitable to the city if the bridge should be swept away before completion.

It is not stated whether Mr. Denman would give a bond to hold the city secure against any such possibility. He is to be the supervising engineer; but as a matter of fact he gives no bond and the city has to take his word that the bridge will stand up and be all right when completed. If it should collapse under its own weight when built by Mr. Denman, the city would have no redress. If the bridge were built by a contractor he would have to give a bond as a guarantee of good work. Then if the bridge fell before the first frost, the contractor would have to pay. Mr. Denman, we understand, is to build the bridge, if at all, on his reputation. His reputation may be first class but no reputation would prop up a tottering bridge nor stay the force of a freshet such as occasionally dashes torrent-like over Pawtucket falls.

It is necessary to perfect the plans before starting the work. It is desirable to secure the $5000 offered by the street railway company on the approval of the plans by the J. R. Worcester company's bridge experts. That approval has not yet been secured and may not be for several weeks. For that reason there is very little prospect of building the bridge this year. The work should be done between May and the end of September. In order that it might have time to dry and harden before the frost sets in. Consequently the whole undertaking will go over to next year's government and the present officials can claim only the credit of getting the bridge movement well started which will probably be sufficient to carry the vote of Pawtucketville at the city election, although it may stir up opposition from other parts of the city on account of the handling and unbusiness like manner in which the municipal council went about the matter. The bridge cannot be built this year and there is no hurry to justify taking any chances of having the job spoiled by cold weather. The old bridge is showing no signs of weakening despite the terrible things said about it, and in its defense we venture to suggest that Commissioner Morse could drive the road roller over it and escape without a scratch.

CANADA IN THE WAR

Canada is entering into the spirit of the war as if her freedom and her future destiny depended upon the triumph of the allies. The troops that left Canada gave a splendid account of themselves at the front and when they found themselves face to face with superior numbers and under terrific fire of the great German guns they did not run; but fought and fought until every man of them was annihilated. They suffered severely, but they taught the enemy that the Canadians are brave fighters and that they never run. Canada mourns the loss of several regiments who bore the brunt of the attack in some of the fiercest battles on the western front; but she is satisfied to know that in their heroic efforts they brought honor to the Dominion and the empire for which they gave their lives.

Canada is training more regiments and preparing for a long struggle. She is now looking over her national finances and estimating her liabilities in the prolongation of the European struggle. She finds the $150,000,000 war loan will not be sufficient to meet the demands beyond March, 1916, and that another loan will be necessary. As it is doubtful that the present revenue from war taxes will be sufficient to meet the interest on necessary and increasing war loans, it is likely that additional taxes will be imposed. The war has proven a serious drain upon the finances of Canada but she is just beginning to realize her great national wealth and the possibilities of her future growth and development.

Out of the depth of depression and in face of a great war she is rising to greater strength and ability to meet all obligations, and this she is doing with a will and a determination that speak well for her future. Her liabilities are small when compared with her great and promising possibilities. Canada is fast assuming the characteristics of nationhood that require no fostering care from any source and the part she is taking in this war is revealing a strength the possession of which she had not previously realized.

GENERAL JOFFRE

The French people are deeply devoted to "Papa" Joffre, the great general in command of the French forces in the present war. Joffre won his laurels in many campaigns and is not only a soldier but a scholar, a lecturer and a refined gentleman. The French many years ago learned to place their confidence in General Joffre and the common saying among them is that if Joffre is in charge of a campaign, there is no need to worry, it will come out successful.

General Joffre's record justifies that opinion. No general perhaps in the entire war is so careful not to sacrifice his men in battle. The French troops are fighting successfully ever a long front, but Gen. Joffre never asks them to rush on the enemy's front or to expose themselves unnecessarily, in front of an overwhelming force or in a disadvantageous position. But when he plans a battle and arranges his forces, the men under Joffre will die willingly in the struggle. The French artillery fire is dreaded by the Germans as are the terrific bayonet charges which are carried out with a sweep of irresistible force. Joffre is the idol of his troops and if speedy victory does not come to France, it will not be the fault of the commanding general.

CASE OF THE LEELANAW

The sinking of the Leelanaw, an American ship, by a German submarine is not a deliberately hostile act as laid down in the last American note to Germany. The vessel was carrying flax which is contraband of war, between two ports of the anti-German belligerents but that cannot be urged in justification of her destruction. In striking contrast with the course pursued in some other cases, was the treatment of the crew which was taken on the submarine and then sent out in small boats. Officials at Washington are rather dismayed at this act of Germany so soon after the delivery of the note. Under specific treaty stipulations all that the Germans could legally demand was that the vessel submit to search, deliver up the contraband and then be allowed to escape. Instead of pursuing this course the Germans sank the vessel. Therein lies the basis of a claim for compensation to be brought against Germany. Doubtless the case will be subject to further diplomatic exchanges.

DANBURY HATTERS' CASE

The Anti-Boycott society of New York has taken steps to sell the homes of 140 defendants in the Danbury Hatters' case in collection of the judgment of $252,120.60. It seems that the Hatters' union has not stood by these defendants as firmly as it should. The sum of $25,000 has been paid and $30,000 is tied up in litigation over the interest. This is certainly a long drawn out case and one which shows by decisions from the highest courts in the land that boycotting the business of any concern, firm or corporation is a very serious matter.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce is at Chicago and he will find it difficult to clear his department of responsibility for the Eastland horror. It was a case of inspectors approving a dangerous vessel and the captain allowing on board about 600 over the maximum number considered safe. The people were simply slaughtered through the criminal negligence of officials.

WOOD ALCOHOL

Somehow wood alcohol is mistaken for the ordinary alcohol and taken in water by some people who want to manufacture their own whiskey. Wood alcohol should be called by some other name and always labelled. It was undoubtedly responsible for the two deaths from what Dr. Meigs has designated "acute poison."

THE DRIVE ON RUSSIA

The attempt of Germany to envelop the entire Russian army is undoubtedly what the Kaiser referred to when he said he would soon make a move that would make all Europe tremble. The movement is the greatest ever attempted in the history of warfare, but its success is yet problematical.

We are not in accord with Commissioner Morse when he says that Prof. Swain had to recommend some changes in the plans of the bridge in order to justify his charge of $500 for examination. Prof. Swain is above any such motive and on that report he bases his reputation which is surely worth more than $500 even in Mr. Morse's estimation. But Mr. Morse has acknowledged that he is not an engineer.

SEEN AND HEARD

A word to the wise may be sufficient but most people need a lot of talking to.

To a good many people the phrase, "the necessities of life" means the things they want.

A DOMESTIC PROBLEM

The cook's new husband didn't turn out to be such a hero as he was expected to be, and the cook came back to console her troubles to her former mistress. "Here's a pretty good husband, master," she said, "but he likes me so often I can't hardly stand it no more." "Why don't you have him arrested?" "I've been thinking of that. But I got a lame back and can't wash no more and how would I ever get the money to pay his fine if he was pinched?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AT LAKE SUNAPEE

Local anglers who are in the habit of visiting Lake Sunapee will be interested to know that Henry L. Bowles of Springfield has agreed to buy 1000 brook trout fingerlings at a cost of $200, and place them in that sheet of water. Of late years very few brook trout have been taken out of Sunapee. Fifteen or more years ago good catches were made there. The record fish of this variety ever caught in Sunapee weighed 7 1/2 pounds and was pulled out by a Manchester fisherman and sent to President McKinley, who was expected to visit the lake that summer as a guest of Secretary Hay. Nature has renewed all cause for fertilization over the state of the water in Sunapee, the heavy rains filling the lake. The total rise since the rain started has been 39 inches, an increase that, according to the record of the dam company, has only been equaled on one occasion within a period of 40 years.

THE CAREFUL BUYER

She hadn't shopped much in the eastern city, and she had been warned that she would have to keep a weather eye out or she would have shoddy goods put off on her. She was a careful shopper, and didn't intend to let the big city stores get the best of her. She had tried the patience of the woman who was making the rounds with her, by twisting the silk to see whether it had cotton in it, and chewing threads of the wool goods to see whether it was all wool, but it seemed to her city cousin that the limit had been reached when they went to the 10-cent store to buy a sugar bowl and cream pitcher. The careful buyer hemmed and hawed for a long time over two sets, and when she had finally decided, and had paid for the goods, she took a last look at the other set, saying regretfully:

"I liked them lots the best, but they didn't look to me like they had as much china in them as this set had."—New York Times.

SO MUCH SIMPLER

A fluffy-haired damsel was trying hard to talk to a professor, but she could hardly follow his remarks, so abstract were they.

"Do you know, madam," he said at length, "that some of our greatest discoveries have been made by accident."

The girl brightened up. She could understand that.

"Oh, yes," she gushed, "And, just fancy, I made such an important discovery myself the other day!"

"Did you?" asked the brainy man, interested. "May I ask what it was?"

"I found that if you keep a bottle of ink handy, a fountain pen can be used as easily as any other kind of pen—without all the dirt and bother of filling it."

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

LEARNING TO DRIVE

NOVEL METHOD OF INSTRUCTION EMPLOYED BY LARGE AUTOMOBILE DEALER—BIG SUCCESS

The "anchored" automobile has solved the big problem for the beginner who doubts his ability to master the art of driving. From the inception of the automobile to the present day the progress of mastering control of the motor car has been slow and in many cases has even kept persons who really wanted automobiles from becoming owners of cars. The new plan for teaching the beginner, however, has eliminated every difficulty, and the pupil can learn to manipulate a car without being exposed to the dangers of the road.

Like other inventions, the anchored car was the result of necessity. The idea originated in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the salesrooms of a large auto firm. The sales manager found it necessary to discover some easy method to teach driving when the sale of a motor car depended on it.

The president of a large Brooklyn corporation recently told the official that his wife desired a car, but that she felt that she could never learn to drive. That remark started the automobile salesman thinking and the result was the anchored car.

The method used to obtain the result is so simple that it is amazing that it has not been thought of before. By using two small wooden horses the rear wheels of the car are raised from the floor just high enough to prevent the car from moving when the wheels revolve. Sitting in the machine it is possible to go through all the motions of driving minus the fear of road dangers.

To aid the beginner the car is placed before a large plate glass window, where the driver can watch the reflection of the wheels as they go around and see just what happens when the various levers and pedals are operated.

The first person to receive a lesson was the wife of the big business man whose remark inspired the idea. It was explained to the beginner that the art of driving is simply mechanical and that certain things must be done to get the desired results. In fact, practice simply made driving automatic.

The first thing required of the pupil was to become familiar with the "key-board" of the car, which included the starting and ignition apparatus. Then there was the brake and clutch pedals, the gear-shifting lever and the accelerator pedal to get acquainted with, and pressed or pushed as the occasion required.

After starting the motor the beginner went through the gears and saw the wheels revolve at different speeds. Then the accelerator pedal could be depressed and the speedometer would register from 20, 30 and 40 to 50 miles an hour. Besides being instructive it was the greatest of fun and absolutely safe.

After four lessons in the anchored car, the pupil was allowed to take a car out on the road for a "real" drive. It then was found that six months' advancement had been made in driving, through the lessons taken in the stationary car. The nervous strain of driving a moving car for the first time was completely overcome. The operator was letter-perfect in the control of the car before going out on the road. So successful was this demonstration that the anchored car has become a regular fixture.

Lowell Motor Mart
Announcements from the Ford Motor Co. always interest the motor enthusiasts and owners. As will be seen from the advertisements of the Lowell Motor Mart on this page today, there will be an interesting announcement regarding the Ford cars next week.

Mr. Rochette in talking with the writer gave no details regarding just what the substance of this announcement will be. However, it is quite sure to be something decidedly in favor of the buyer following the long established custom of the Ford company. Very many Ford cars are now owned and operated by Lowell people and many other people will become owners in the near future. It is hinted that there will be a marked increase in the sales of the Fords following the announcement next week.

Sawyer Carriage Co.

Increased business is constantly noticeable at the Sawyer Carriage company in Worthen Street. This company makes a specialty of automobile repair work and its efficiency in this line has been proven. The firm operates one of Lowell's largest plants and has attained a position of prominence.

Auburn Motor Sales Company

The bringing out of the new 1916 Auburn motor car has greatly increased the sales of this highly favored type. The Auburn Motor Sales company of Lowell has benefited accordingly. Messrs. Johnson and Morrison have been kept quite busy supplying the demand for demonstrations and answering inquiries. The office of the company is located in the Bradley building.

AUTOMOBILE QUESTION BOX

EDITED BY GEORGE H. ROBERTSON

NOTE—In these columns every Wednesday Mr. George H. Robertson, America's foremost automobile authority, will give expert advice to motorists on how to repair and operate their machines. Automobile readers of THE SUN are invited to send in questions or problems they may wish to have answered. Such questions will receive attention in due time. Address all communications: Automobile Editor, Sun, Lowell, Mass. Communications must bear the signature and address of the sender, though not for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

We have had a discussion on the advantages and disadvantages of the two cycle motor. Will you kindly state the disadvantage of this type of motor?

A.—Two cycle motors are not as efficient as the four cycle forms because it is practically impossible to expel the burnt gases and fill the cylinder with fresh gas at the same time without serious mixing. The dilution of the fresh gas by the burnt products reduces its power and it will not explode as readily as fresh gas will. Also a certain amount of the fresh charge invariably flows out of the open exhaust port before this is closed by the piston moving upward. The two cycle engine will not throttle down as well as a four cycle, nor will it attain as high speeds. Two cycle engines are sensitive as to the mixture variations. They are not as flexible as the four cycle, and do not respond as readily to the throttle.

Will you tell me what is the most important part of a motor car to lubricate? Your advice will be appreciated.

A.—The power plant is the most important part of the automobile chassis, and in order to obtain continued efficient operation without overheating or diminution of power it is necessary to keep all the interior working parts covered with film of oil.

In climbing a grade, what should a person observe in regard to shifting his gears? It is puzzling sometimes to know just when to change.

A.—If the engine begins to labor when in high gear and opening the throttle more does not produce an acceleration of car speed it is an indication that the resistance is becoming too great for the amount of power available and it is necessary to shift to a lower ratio.

I have a 1912 Ford on which I use electric lights for my head lights directed from my magneto. Recently I find that my car does not run as well with the lights lit as when they are not. I think my magneto is getting weak.

Is there any way that I can remagnetize the magneto without taking it from the car? Is this trouble due to a weak magneto which has lost some of its magnetism?

A.—The use of electric lights run from the magneto of this model Ford tends to decrease the ignition efficiency. Would advise you to have the magneto looked over at the Ford branch.

Please let me know if when the connections leading from the accelerator to the carburetor are loose, more gasoline is consumed than when connecting parts are tight.

A.—Loose carburetor connections do not tend to increase the consumption of gasoline. These loose connections tend to make an uncertain operation of the carburetor control, and in order to have the perfect feel of the motor, all the connections must be tight.

Can you tell why tires are usually the same size on a car?

A.—It is common practice to make the front and rear wheels the same size on most cars, because there is very little difference possible between the front and rear shoes with the average weight distribution. If two sizes are used, one must carry two spare casings and two different sizes of inner tubes to make satisfactory repairs. If the casings are the same size the front tires may be used to replace the weaker rear shoes, and these members in turn transferred to the front wheels after a car has been in operation for a time. Rear tires invariably wear faster than front ones, so that after they have worn to a point where they are considered weak for the rear wheels they may have ample strength for the lighter duties at the front end of the car and the front tires, which are in better condition, may be placed on the rear wheels.

What is the best process for removing pistons from a gasoline engine that have been rusted in the cylinder?—Liberal soakings of the cylinder and piston with kerosene will eventually cause the piston to free itself. After a good kerosene soak hammer the wrist pin of the piston gently using a lead bar and a lead or rawhide hammer. A gentle tapping of the cylinder walls from the outside with a soft hammer while the other operation is being performed will sometimes help in loosening a rusted piston.

How many miles can I get out of a new Ford touring car before it could be called old? Say, for instance, I used it evenings and Sundays, how long do you think it would last?

A.—A Ford car, used as you suggest, should last from four or five years. This means, of course, that a thorough going over of the car should

BROUGHT DOWN AIRCRAFT

Territorials Not Boasting Over Feat for Victim Proved to be a British Army Machine

SOUTH END, Eng., July 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Two companies of territorials stationed near here brought down an aeroplane with rifle fire early this week, but they are not boasting over the feat for the victim proved to be a British army machine.

The territorials responsible for such an accurate but unfortunate feat of marksmanship were guarding Canney Island, where huge quantities of war munitions are stored and had instructions to shoot at any aviator flying over the island without giving an agreed signal to indicate that he was not bound on a hostile errand. The victim of their marksmanship either did not know of this rule or ignored it, and when he got within range a volley was fired at him. None of the bullets struck the aviator, but one of them punctured the

The issue over the destruction of the American steamer Leelanaw, which was sunk by a German submarine while en route from Archangel, Russia, to Belfast, was regarded almost identical with that of the destruction of the American sailing ship William P. Frye by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, for which the United States has demanded the payment of a monetary indemnity and full reparation for the violation of treaty stipulations. One difference, however, between the Frye and Leelanaw cases is to be found in the fact that the Americans on the Frye were taken on board the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich and carried to a place of safety at Newport News, while the captain and crew of the Leelanaw, according to reports from London, were taken aboard the German submarine, but were afterward required to take to their own boats. The Leelanaw incident will figure prominently in the controversy between this country and Germany. High officials were inclined to look upon it as a serious aggravation of the situation.

60 MILES ON SUBMARINE

Crew of Leelanaw Well Treated by Germans — Commander Apologizes for Sinking Ship

ABERDEEN, via London, July 25. 6.15 a. m.—They could not have treated us more courteously than they did," was the unanimous verdict of Capt. Eugene Delk and the members of the crew of the American steamer Leelanaw when questioned last night regarding their encounter with a German submarine. They traveled about sixty miles on the deck of the submarine and became well acquainted with its crew, several of whom had been in America.

One member of the Leelanaw's crew remained aboard the submarine at his own request. He was one of the mess boys of the American ship, and as he was of German nationality, preferred joining the crew of the under water craft to the probability of internment in England. At Kirkwall another of the Leelanaw mess boys was found to be a German and was detained.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY REPORT

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Ambassador Page today forwarded a report by the British admiralty on the sinking of the American steamer Leelanaw by a German submarine off the Orkney Islands last Sunday.

The admiralty reported that the Leelanaw was lying in the Orkney Islands when overtaken and that the crew had plenty of time to take to the boats which were towed 60 miles until a strange vessel was sighted.

WIFE OF "BIG BILL" ACTS

MRS. KELLER TO RESIST TAKING HUSBAND FROM STATE PRISON TO ATLANTA, GEORGIA

BOSTON, July 28.—Mrs. William J. Keller, wife of "Big Bill" Keller, who is serving a sentence of 18 years for his share in the wrecking of the National City bank of Cambridge, today will begin a legal fight to prevent the transfer of her husband from the state prison to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Atty. Harvey H. Pratt, who acted as counsel for Keller during the battle in the courts, has agreed to accept the case, provided Mrs. Keller desires his services, and she stated last night that she purposes placing the matter before her husband at the Charlestown prison this morning and that in all probability she will hold a conference with Mr. Pratt this afternoon.

It was stated that the legal effort to keep Keller in Charlestown will be based on the sentence imposed by Judge Hale in the United States district court and which was upheld in the United States district court of appeals. Keller was sentenced to serve 18 years in the Massachusetts state prison. As the legal fight distinctly specifies that the state prison was to be the place of commitment it is believed that serious legal questions can be raised.

Keller was sentenced in April, 1912, on a charge of having aided and abetted George W. Coleman in wrecking the Cambridge bank, and had served approximately 42 months. Coleman at the same time was sentenced to 15 years and is confined in the county jail at Greenfield. He is also listed as a federal prisoner.

The instructions received yesterday by United States Marshal John J. Mitchell from the attorney general at Washington ordered the removal to Atlanta of Keller and six other federal prisoners confined at Charlestown, but no instructions were received with regard to Coleman.

GYPSY MOTH PEST

State Forester F. W. Rane Calls Attention to Best Time For Destruction of Them

State Forester F. W. Rane has issued a warning against the gypsy moth pest and announces the most opportune time for destroying them. In his statement he says:

"Just at this time, the devastation wrought by the gypsy moth is most noticeable, as the larvae or worms are now fully matured and having passed the feeding stage, are about to transform into the pupa state. In fact, in some localities, pupation has already taken place, and in some sections of the state moths have emerged and are laying their eggs for future crops."

"The purpose of calling the attention of the public to this subject is to explain that nothing can be done at the present time to repair the damage caused by the moths during the season just closing. The most effective work can be accomplished in fighting the gypsy moth pest during the fall and winter by treating the egg masses with cresote, or late in the spring, immediately after the eggs are hatched by spraying the foliage with arsenate of lead."

"The time for determining just how destructive these moths are is now, and further, if they are very bad at present, the probabilities are that they will be equally bad or worse next season."

"The state forester, therefore, recommends that all woodland owners look their properties over now and if they desire any advice from his office as to future methods, that an application be made to his office, stating location, acreage, etc., or send for a blank form which can be filled in and returned."

HAS FULLY RECOVERED

ISLESBORO, Me., July 25.—Although the permanent residents of the island are somewhat stirred up by the reported assault upon Mrs. G. W. C. Drexel of Philadelphia, who narrowly escaped serious injury by being pushed over a high bank from a narrow shore path on the Drexel estate at North Islesboro by an unknown man Saturday morning, the Drexels declined to make any statement to reporters yesterday and appeared annoyed that any publicity was given to the case.

Mrs. Drexel entertained a party of friends at luncheon yesterday and assured those inquiring by telephone from Dark Harbor and Bar Harbor that she was quite well and had entirely recovered from the nervous shock.

A story that the Drexel assault was a discredited employee who had made threats against her, in circulation, but cannot be confirmed. Mrs. Drexel is reported as saying that the man was small and dark and evidently an Italian.

Sheriff Frank Cushman of Belfast, who has jurisdiction over Islesboro, which is in Waldo county, said yesterday:

"I am ready at instant notice to send a posse of deputies to any point in the county where a crime has been committed upon information. I could not doubt have made an arrest had I been promptly notified by the Drexels, but so far as I know, they are not interested in having the case investigated. We are on the lookout, however, for suspicious characters. All I know about the case is what I have read in the papers."

A number of motor-boat and yacht parties skirted the shore of the island yesterday to see the place where Mrs. Drexel says she was pushed over the bank and saw saved from a fall of 50 feet in the rocks below by landing in a treetop which caught her clothing and held her until rescued.

Well Known Greek Doctor Elected President of Community

An interesting meeting of the directors of the local Greek community was held last night and Dr. John C. Gatsopoulos was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Demosthenes Generales. The church trouble, which existed in the community for some time, has been settled in a very amicable manner.

At Sunday's meeting Dr. Generales, who had been elected president for four months, tendered his resignation. The directors refused to take action upon the retirement of the doctor and the matter was laid on the table until last evening. Dr. Generales opened last evening's meeting and informed his fellow citizens he did not wish to remain in the chair of the president any longer. Accordingly, the resignation was accepted and Dr. John C. Gatsopoulos was unanimously chosen his successor.

Dr. Gatsopoulos is one of the best known members of the community. He has been a resident of this city for the past nine years, during which time he has made a host of friends. The new president will remain in office four months and his successor will be Dr. George Demopoulos.

The church question was taken up last evening and settled in a satisfactory manner for all concerned. It will be remembered that shortly after the election of Peter Tavoularis as president last year, Rev. Hariton Panagoulas was asked to resign as pastor of the Greek Orthodox church, and Rev. Nestor Souleifer of Boston accepted the call to Lowell. Rev. Fr. Panagoulas, however, remained in this city and kept a large following with him. It was voted last night to retain the services of both priests, and when the clergymen were interviewed on this matter, they expressed their satisfaction, as hereafter the duties of the church will be looked after by both priests. The revision of the bylaws of the community was also taken up, but no definite action was taken.

It is believed that although Dr. Generales resigned as president he will remain on the board of directors, which numbers 21. If he resigns as a director, however, the other directors will elect another member of the community to fill the vacancy.

Every month the pains were intense on both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E.
